Green Light for Woodstock Festival, Three-Day Event to Begin Tonight

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

SAUGERTIES

The string of legal maneuvers ran out Thursday afternoon in Appellate Division, Albany and the Woodstock Sound Festival has the green light to open 7 o'clock tonight at Shultis Corners in this community.

According to Town Supervisor A. Michael Schovel, sounds were already pouring from the Pan Copeland farm site at 6 o'clock this morning, area residents reported. A spokesman at the festival site said they were testing sound equipment and it was shutdown when the complaint was made to the festival operators.

The automatic stay granted the Town of Saugerties Wednesday on the basis of its appeal of a temporary injunction favoring Sound Festival Woodstock Inc., was vacated in a decision by J. Clarence Herlihy, presiding justice of the Appellate Division.

Justice Herlihy signed a show cause order yesterday summoning the Town of Saugerties to show cause on Wednesday 11:30 a. m. at Special Term, why an order should not be made vacating the automatic stay obtained by the town by reason of its having filed a notice of appeal. As there appeared to be sufficient cause and until the Wednesday hearing and determination of this motion, the automatic stay of July 1 is vacated, the court ruled.

The town, by this ruling, is enjoined from interference with the conduct of the festival this weekend. The original injunction favoring the festival operators ruled that Sound Festival

Woodstock Inc., could not be forced to file an assemblage permit application 30 days prior to the event because the town's new assemblage law only became effective on June 22.

The town subsequently filed a notice of appeal which stays all proceedings under the order and the appeal was vacated yesterday pending the Wednesday hearing.

Kingston Attorney William C. Mullaney represented the Sound Festival in the proceedings and Town Attorney Richard B. Overbakh represented the town.

Meanwhile, Supervisor Schovel said the town was making preparations to be ready for any emergency. The Town Police Force of 26 members was called out today under Chief Charles P. Riley. Schovel said the Sheriff's Department and the State Police are on standby.

Another blow to Saugerties residents who opposed the show was the granting of permission by the State Conservation Department to allow camping of festival patrons on 40 acres of state land on the Dutchtown Road at High Woods, the supervisor reported. Under the Health Department regulations festival patrons cannot remain overnight at the festival site.

On the festival grounds preparations for the sound-in are in the final stages according to Marc Rosenbaum, public relations director for the festival. As to ticket sales, Rosenbaum said, "Ticket sales are not too spectacular." He said it was difficult to know at this time how many tickets were sold because sales locations have not yet reported the number sold.

Top name recording rock artists will be appearing during the three days. Tonight and Saturday the shows will end by 11 p. m., on Sunday the show closes at 6 p. m. according to the festival operator's schedule.

Ian Hain, who represents the promoters said yesterday that the festival operators would have their own patrols on the eight-acre Pan Copeland farm to avoid incidents and trouble that might jeopardize the issuance of a permit from the town for future mini-festivals planned for week-ends the remainder of the summer.

The temporary injunction granted the Sound Festival will permit weekend festivals through July 19 without a permit. Thereafter the festival will be permitted to operate only if the Town of Saugerties approves permit applications.

This weekend will be the real test and further action by the town will depend on how the operation proceeds within the regulations.

If the attendance should reach 1,000, town police officials expect some traffic problems because of vacationists who are starting to come into the area. The Saugerties Jaycees Independence Day observance which also starts tonight at Cantine Field and the parade Saturday at 10 a. m. will also add to the traffic woes of police agencies.

Town police will be stationed at traffic trouble spots at Centerville, High Woods and Shultis Corners to keep the traffic moving and to discourage parking along the highways. Parking along town roads, all of which are only two lanes in the festival area will be prohibited.

Predict New Enemy Cambodia Offensive

Red Mine Sinks River Ship: 46 Dead

SAIGON (AP) — A passenger river boat struck a floating mine just south of the Demilitarized Zone today and blew up, killing 46 of the 50 Vietnamese civilians aboard, a government spokesman announced.

The mining occurred on a branch of the Cua Viet River less than a mile from Dong Ha, the boat's destination about nine miles south of the DMZ.

The river is regularly patrolled by U.S. and South Vietnamese boats, and North Vietnamese mines in it have sunk or damaged a number of boats. But the toll today was believed to be the largest.

Only light, scattered fighting was reported in South Vietnam, but the U.S. Command reported the loss of another plane a week ago. It was a Navy A7 Crusader jet that crashed as it was taking off from a carrier June 26 on a mission to Laos. The pilot was rescued.

South Vietnamese officials also announced the withdrawal of a brigade of marines—between 1,000 and 2,000 men—from Cambodia, reducing the total number of South Vietnamese troops in the neighboring country to about 25,000.

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian military command said newly reinforced Communist divisions are preparing for a major new offensive and already are moving assault troops into position in one key area.

A spokesman said Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops are "ready for anything." He added that the enemy threat to Phnom Penh has "receded considerably."

The spokesman said another major threat is developing around Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, with fresh enemy troops moving into position outside the city. The highway between Kompong Thom and Phnom Penh was still closed despite efforts of several Cambodian battalions to clear it.

A month-long siege of Kompong Thom was broken in late June after U.S. fighter-bombers made heavy air strikes on enemy positions around the town. This was the first reported direct U.S. military intervention on the side of Premier Lon Nol's troops.

President Nixon is satisfied with progress of the Vietnamization program and reports by the Pentagon that American casualties have dropped dramatically in the last six months. Story on Page 20.

The spokesman also reported more harassing attacks in the Siem Reap-Angkor area in northwest Cambodia and other harassing attacks on government troops near the provincial capitals of Takeo, south of Phnom Penh, and Prey Vieng, east of the capital.

Sweeps by South Vietnamese troops north of Phnom Penh and by the Cambodian army south and southwest of the capital have reduced the threat to Phnom Penh for the moment, the spokesman said.

But the sweeping forces were unable to bring the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese to battle, and the spokesman said as the Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops leave an area, the enemy forces return and continue their preparations for new attacks.

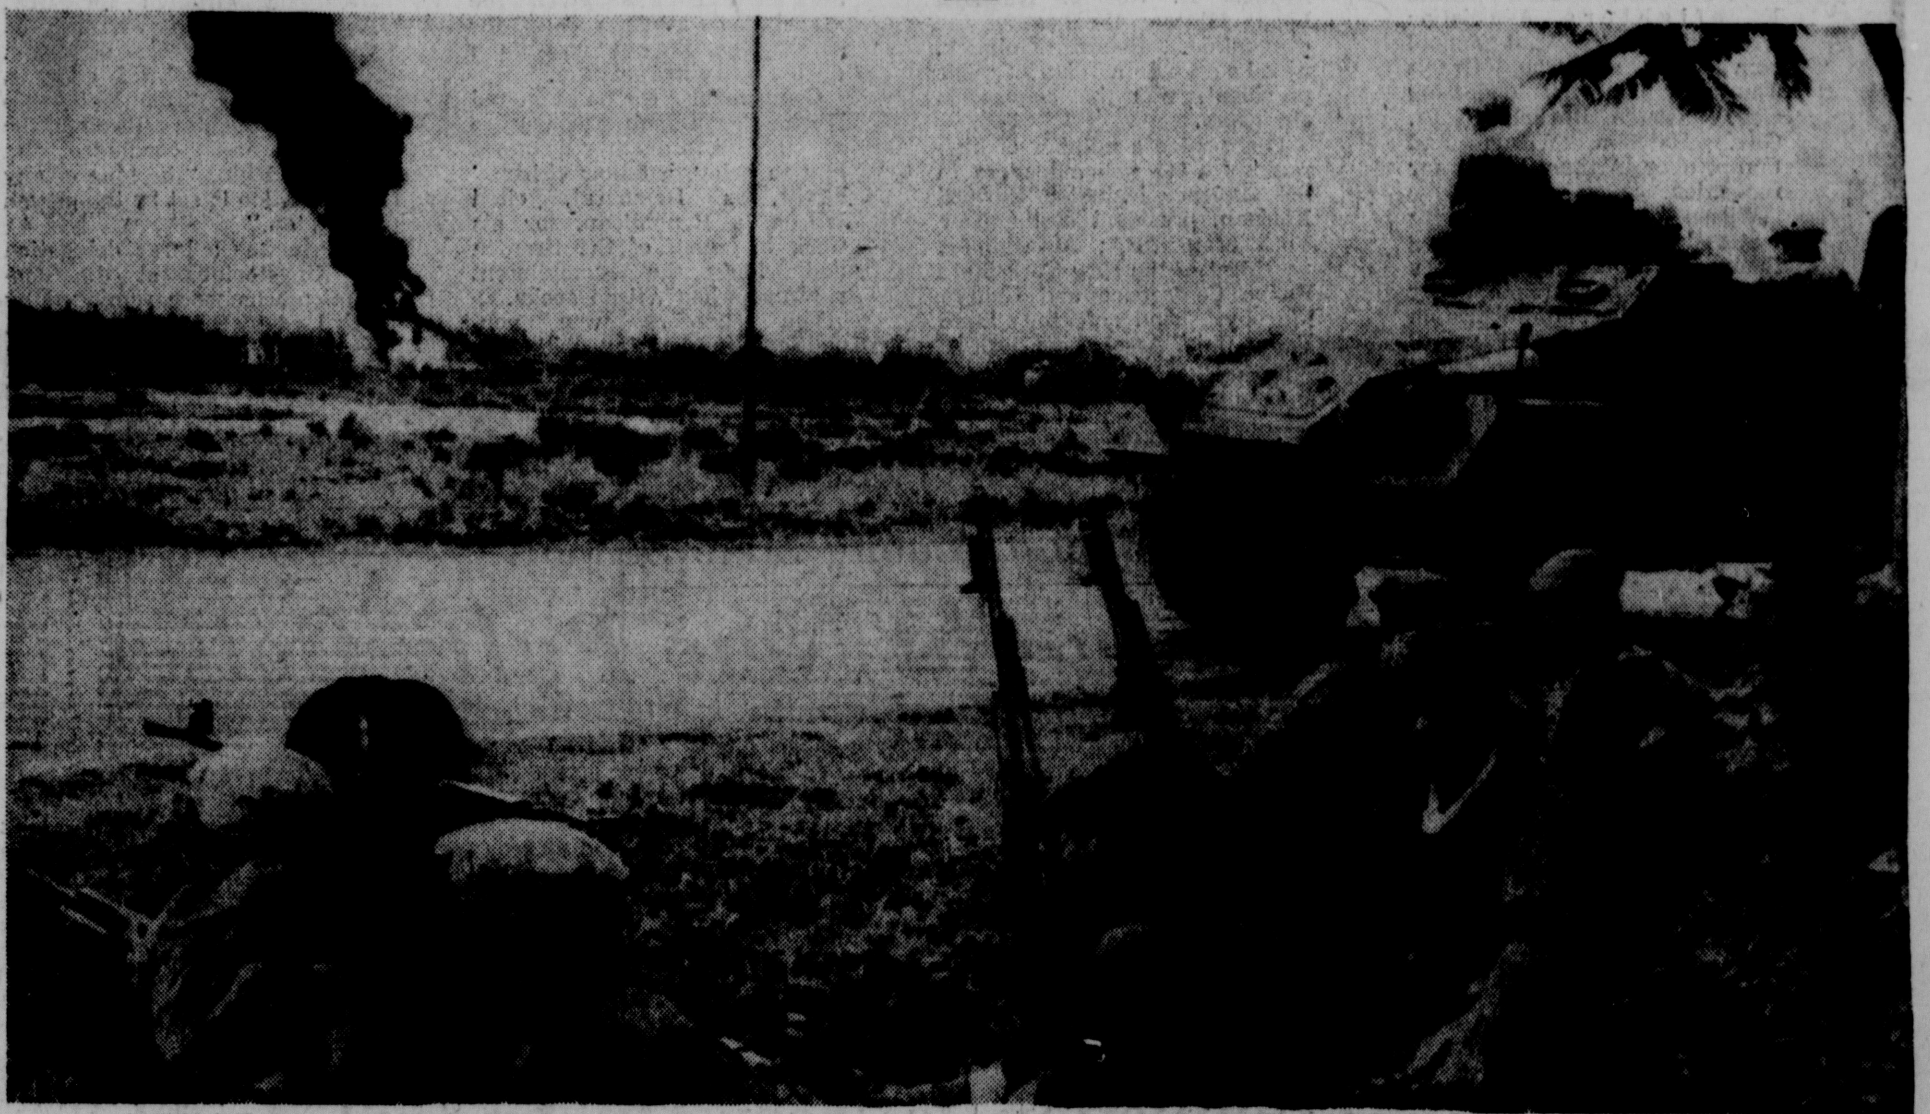

Questioned about reports from Bangkok that the Thai air force had been making bombing attacks and air reconnaissance missions in Cambodia, the spokesman said there had been no Thai military activity in the country to date.

Reports in Bangkok Thursday said Thai fighter-bombers had attacked a village two miles inside Cambodia to destroy arms left by 200 Cambodian soldiers who fled to Thailand with their families. The Thai defense ministry would not comment on the reports.

Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman told a meeting of the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization in Manila that his government may be forced to take military action in Cambodia if North Vietnamese moving from Cambodia into Thailand. But it was generally believed the Thais wouldn't move unless the United States paid the bills, and the U.S. Senate's approval of the Cooper-Church Amendment this week made this unlikely.

Meanwhile, a military tribunal in Phnom Penh began the trial in absentia of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's ousted chief of state, on charges of treason. The charges, read in a small courtroom filled largely with foreign newsmen, accused Sihanouk of giving the Viet Cong permission to enter the country and collaborating with them in various ways, of sabotaging the economy and of violating the constitution.

Premier Lon Nol and the other officials of Sihanouk's government who deposed him while he was in Europe arranged the trial in an attempt to undermine the prince's great popularity with the country's 7 million peasants. It is generally assumed that the court will find Sihanouk guilty.

Make Capture Near Marlboro

By HUGH REYNOLDS

NEWBURGH

Gunfire erupted in Newburgh Thursday night shortly after dark leaving a 26-year old auto mechanic dead and four men, including the victim's uncle, charged with murder after their capture at a farm near Marlboro.

Newburgh city police identified the victim as Garner Williams, 26, of 271 Grand Street, Newburgh, the father of several children.

Charged in the shooting, which occurred at 9:30 last night, were the victim's uncle, Hardy Williams Sr., 48, Hardy Williams Jr., 26, Robert Earl Williams, 22, and Leonard Otto Smith, 22.

The four were arraigned before Acting Newburgh City Judge Albert McDowell this morning and remanded to the Orange County Jail for an appearance on Tuesday morning.

The three Williams men were all from the Weygands Farm in Marlboro on Lattintown Road, about a quarter mile north of the junction of Platekill Road. Smith is from Newburgh.

Police believe a family dispute triggered the shooting which left Garner Williams dead with bullet wounds in the chest and back.

The accused killers then fled allegedly north in a 1969 Pontiac to the farm in Marlboro.

Marlboro Chief William Anusko tells the story of the capture. "We were alerted by the Newburgh police of the shooting and that they were seeking men named Williams. We knew of men named Williams from the Weygands Farm. We've had calls out there in the past."

Constable Walter Beck was dispatched to guide state police and Newburgh police to the scene, later to be joined by Chief Anusko.

Those police officers were joined by reinforcements from the State Police Barracks in Highland. The time was about 10 p.m.

Chief Anusko said that about 10 police officers surrounded the farmhouse. "There was no shooting," he said. "We just went in and got them. They came peacefully."

The chief said that he saw two bullet holes in the trunk of the Pontiac. Police were not clear on just who did the shooting at the Pontiac. Chief Anusko said that there was no shooting in Marlboro. A number of weapons were confiscated, including rifles.

It is believed that the shooting took place at the scene of the crime from neighbors or relatives rushing to the defense of Garner Williams.

Highland State Police returned to station and at 12:45 this morning arrested two men in the town of Esopus on third degree burglary charges.

Charged with the crime were Prince Albert Baynes, 22, of 96 Jackson Street Fishkill and Charles Cahill, 23, of 75 Wheaton Avenue, also of Fishkill.

They appeared before Esopus Justice John O. Beaver early this morning and were remanded to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail each for an appearance before Justice Beaver on July 14.

Ceremonies Across Nation

Honor America--Huge Throng Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You don't have to think this country is perfect in order to honor America on the Fourth of July, the Rev. Billy Graham said today.

"Critical patriots may be the best kind," he said in an interview with UPI. "People who really love their country should acknowledge its faults and get to work to correct them."

Graham and comedian Bob Hope are co-chairmen of "Honor America Day," a sort of super-colossal Fourth of July observed Saturday in Washington and many other cities and towns across the nation.

Former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower are honorary chairmen of the event.

Graham will lead off the daylong program with an address before an interfaith religious service at the Lincoln Memorial. The program, beginning at 11 a.m. EDT, will be broadcast to the nation by all three major television networks, and many communities are planning local tie-in services.

It will open with a "national salute." In the capital and across the nation, church bells and carillons will ring, auto horns will sound, and factory whistles will blow for two minutes in a patriotic cacophony without precedent.

A large turnout — estimates range from 200,000 to more than 400,000 — is expected for an evening show at the Washington Monument which will be emceed by Hope. It will feature what Hollywood calls a star-studded cast of performers, ranging in era from such grand old-timers as Jack Benny, Kate Smith and Louis Armstrong to such current idols as B. J. Thomas, Roberta Flack and soul king James Brown.

CBS plans to televise a one-hour segment of the evening entertainment and NBC will tape a segment for showing it. ABC said Thursday it plans to televise only the morning event.

The Rev. E. W. Hill, a black minister from Los Angeles who will preside at the morning service, deplored efforts by local black militants to organize a Negro boycott of the event.

Ulster and Northern Dutchess Counties plan parades, fireworks and celebrations in honor of Independence Day. Story on page 4.

"Unless Negroes are badly misled about the nature of this celebration, they'll take part in it," Hill told UPI. "The vast majority of the black community is pro-God and pro-America, and I think they'll welcome this chance to register that fact." Hill said blacks who are both religious and patriotic are "a silenced majority" rarely quoted in the news media.

"We try to say where we stand, but somebody keeps turning down the volume," he said.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported flags, fireworks and soul food are some of the ingredients that will go into Honor Day activities designed to show love of country on this July 4.

"There will be no banners, no signs, just flags," says Robert E. Cole Jr., Honor America Day parade chairman in Waikiki. He described this Saturday's parade as simply a "flag carrying" march.

Negro leaders in Milwaukee have planned three days of soul food picnics, gospel singing and dances to honor blacks who have died in war. The activities will end July 4 with a parade the honor Crispus Attucks, a black patriot killed in the Boston Massacre prior to the Revolutionary War.

In Virginia, nearly 400 Boy Scouts are participating in a four-day marathon to carry an American flag mounted on a baton from Williamsburg to Washington, where they will arrive for the Honor America observances.

Wawarsing Landfill Site...A Thorough Study

By JON POWERS

ELLENVILLE — Wawarsing Town Supervisor Frank W. Harkin Thursday night told a group of more than 75 protesting Napanoch homeowners that plans to establish a landfill in that village north of Ellenville would be studied by non-partisan, professional conservationists before a final decision is made on the matter by the Town Board.

Members of the Napanoch Citizen's Committee, who jammed the town meeting hall, were somewhat less than ecstatic about Harkin's announcement. They had hoped for an immediate decision in their favor, and some expressed suspicions that the board may only be stalling.

Harkin's proposal includes a request to the newly established New York State Department of Environmental Control to send a team of conservationists to the Wawarsing area to study the proposed landfill site. Harkin stated that he will solicit opinions from the investigators as to the "feasibility" and "suitability" of the proposed site.

The Town Supervisor went on to say that the final report of the conservation commission will be publicized as soon as it is completed. He added, also, that either a public or informational meeting will be held prior to any decision by the Town Board on the matter. Harkin indicated that the study will hopefully be completed before September of this year.

Councilman Jerome Elkin supported Harkin's proposal but included another suggestion that was enthusiastically applauded by the audience. Elkin urged the Town Board to specifically petition Governor Rockefeller for state assistance in the matter.

"New York State has thousands of acres of land in Wawarsing," said Elkin, "and there is no reason why it can't appropriate some of that land for town landfill purposes." Elkin based his argument on the fact that the state is not paying taxes on the land it currently holds in Wawarsing. He added that, since state regulations have forced the closing of the old Wawarsing Town dump, "the least the state can do is help us find another site."

Napanoch residents, however, were not content to let the matter rest with the promise of a re-study. Many expressed favorable decision. According to plan but, rather, the effect a brief shouting match between two members of the audience. One Napanoch resident stated that sanitary landfills, like the one planned for Napanoch, do not cause pollution of the air or attract rats. He was shouted down by several others who invited him, and Supervisor Harkin, to tour the dumping facilities at either Accord or the village of Ellenville. At these sites, it was alleged that rats and other rodents display an extreme amount of fondness towards humans.

CONCERNED WAWARSING RESIDENTS

At the conclusion of this debate, which ended unresolved, Town Engineer Aaron Horowitz reiterated his sentiments that he has "no reservations about recommending the Napanoch property for landfill purposes."

After the grumbles and scattered boos subsided following this comment, Horowitz told a questioner in the audience that incineration of Wawarsing garbage would cost at least one million dollars for installation of the plant alone. Horowitz added that the town would still need a landfill to accommodate the 20-30 per cent residue that is left over after incineration.

At this point, Harkin appealed to the audience to understand the board's position on the matter. He reemphasized that the board must consider the needs of all 12,000 residents in the Town of Wawarsing and he added that "all we're trying to do is figure out how to get the garbage out of your backyards." Harkin, here, was referring to a situation several councilmen have predicted if the Village of Ellenville refuses to grant the town an extension on its dumping permit.

The fiery meeting ended on a threatening note. E. F. Messinger, a Napanoch homeowner whose wife spearheaded the original petition campaign against the landfill proposal, said that the Citizen's Committee would bring suit against the town if the landfill resolution is approved. Messinger also stated that a permissive referendum must be held prior to any board decision on this matter and he predicted that Wawarsing taxpayers would defeat any proposal to establish the landfill at the site now under consideration. Council to Get Cablevision Request

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON — The Laws and Rules Committee's rejection of a rate increase by Kingston Cablevision highlights Tuesday night's regular meeting of the Kingston Common Council.

Laws and Rules, in filing a rare negative report, states that Cablevision's request for a rate increase from $4.95 to $6.50 per month has been "thoroughly and exhaustively investigated." The committee report notes numerous complaints about service from city residents.

Also on the agenda is a resolution from the Laws and Rules and Finance Committees approving the purchase of title insurance for the new city hall site in Broadway East and an adjoining site where a new fire station is planned. The resolution notes a discount of $1,600 from the regular yearly cost of $4,600 for one million dollars worth of coverage.

The Kingston Human Relations Commission has a request to change its name to the City of Kingston Commission on Human Rights.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig writes a letter pointing out that the National Electric Code which the city uses does not require minimum outlets in buildings. He recommends a change in the local law establishing those outlets.

The Finance Committee and Laws and Rules Committee offer a resolution applying for matching funds of no more than $35,000 for up to eight "mini-parks" in the city. The resolution states that most of the parks will be built on city-owned property but in cases where private property must be acquired the city will exercise its right of eminent domain.

It is expected that Tuesday's meeting of the Council will be recessed to allow the aldermen to come back into session later this month to vote on a zoning change request off Fairview Avenue in the Wilbur Tract to allow 150 units of garden apartments. A public hearing has been set in city hall on July 8 at 8 p.m.

Alderman Brian Smith (R-Third Ward) has notified Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo that he will be on vacation at the time of the Council meeting and has asked to be excused.

32nd Annual Convention

Firefighters Endorse Rocky

KERHONKSON — The New York State Firefighters Association wrapped up its 32nd annual convention at the Granit Thursday night by endorsing Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson and Comptroller Arthur Levitt for reelection.

Wilson and Levitt were featured speakers addressing themselves to the gains firemen (and police) have made under the Rockefeller administration over the past several years, gains which include 20-year retirement plan, increased pensions and health plans.

Guests included Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, State Senator Jay

P. Rolison Jr. and Mayor Francis R. Koenig, Kingston Loca 461 was the host of the convention. Robert Gollnick, reelected a district vice president, was the convention chairman.

There were a number of high ranking state police leaders in the audience including Edward Kiernan, president of the New York State PBA; Al Siglione, president of the New York State Police Conference and George Murphy, head of the State Police Chief Association.

Ross Ritto of Rochester was elected President of the state firefighters and acted as master of ceremonies.

Firemen Robert Dugan of Syracuse was given the association's heroism award for saving the life of a woman during a fire in Syracuse.

Comptroller Levitt cited Dugan "as a man prepared to give his all to another unknown human being, a fellow citizen." Levitt, a Democrat, cited Wilson, a Republican, for his work in behalf of the firemen and had the compliment returned when Wilson spoke.

The speeches were non-political in keeping with the traditional non-partisan stand of the firefighters association. In fact, this was the first year the firemen have ever endorsed a candidate.

Wilson accepted a plaque from the firemen for Gov. Rockefeller who is currently on vacation off the coast of Maine.

Wilson, in a brief address, spoke of the "fine leadership of the firefighters through the years," and concluded, in praising Ritto, "the tone of any organization is set by the person at the top."

There was a large delegation of Kingstonians at the convention who were reminded by Local 461 President William Scherdtfeger that the association's 14th annual Independence Day celebration takes place at Dietz Stadium beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday night.

Fifth Highest Among State Schools

$23,800 Damage at New Paltz College

ALBANY — The price tag for damage done during the 1969-70 academic year at State University College at New Paltz was listed at $23,800, fifth highest among the State University of New York's 26 colleges and centers, a report disclosed Thursday.

The total price tag for damage done at 18 of the State University's colleges and centers totaled $518,500. Most of it was attributed to student radicals.

All but eight of the SUNY units were affected, the report stated, but most of the damage was confined to four campuses — the Universities at Buffalo, Albany and Stony Brook and the State University College at Buffalo.

The report was prepared by John J. Mather, an assistant to SUNY Chancellor Samuel B. Gould.

At UB, damages registered

$223,000; about $85,000 at Albany; $92,463 at Buffalo State College and $78,000 at Stony Brook. Most of the damage, the report said, occurred after May 4 as students across the nation reacted to the shooting deaths of Kent State, Ohio, and Jackson State, Mississippi, students along with announced U.S. military operations in Cambodia.

Most of the damage at the University at Buffalo was done before May. The report said arsonists, acting singly or in a mob, caused most of the damage to SUNY facilities. There were 672 false fire alarms, 149 bomb threats and 239 incidents of harassment or personal confrontation. While the report did not cite any specific recommendations for curbing such incidents, it noted that "it is quite clear that new efforts must be made to meet disorders fomented by extreme radicals." The second greatest expense to the university, next to fire damage, was window breakage. The report attributed most of that type action to "guerrilla groups acting in isolation or in the midst of mobs." Aside from the four main branches, and New Paltz this was the breakdown on damage given at individual schools: Binghamton, $1,163; Brockport, $16,875; Oneonta, $4,020; Oswego, $3,582; Geneseo, $1,233; Cortland, $150; Delhi, $13,000; and Cobleskill, $50.

Completion Is Near On Special Audit

A special audit of student fee activities and other fiscal matters at State University College at New Paltz is nearing completion according to the office of State Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

The audit, which was first termed as routine by the Department of Audit and Control, was started three weeks ago. No results have been released as yet and no timetable for assembling data has been established according to Francis S. Rivett, public relations officer for the department.

In a letter sent to Charles H. Christman of the New York State Taxpayers Association, Levitt replied to a query concerning the audit program of Control, was started three weeks ago. No results have are completing a special audit on this question at New Paltz, and a similar audit is being started at Buffalo.

The letter was made public by Levitt's office Thursday.

9 Arab Infiltrators Killed by Israelis

By United Press International — An Israeli army patrol killed nine Arab guerrilla infiltrators from Jordan Thursday night in the Jordan Valley two miles north of the Dead Sea, an Israeli military spokesman said. The guerrillas' weapons and explosives were found beside their bodies, the spokesman told newsmen in Tel Aviv. He said Israel suffered no casualties in the fighting.

Arab newspapers said today President Nixon had jeopardized the chances of his own peace initiative with the remarks he made Wednesday night in support of Israel. Nixon said the United States should do what was necessary to maintain Israel's strength.

Israel fought an artillery battle across the Suez Canal with Egypt Thursday night, an Israeli military spokesman said. He said two Israeli soldiers were wounded.

Jordan said its troops fought a 90-minute machine gun and mortar battle with Israeli forces in the South Jordan Valley Thursday night. A military spokesman in Amman said there were no Jordanian casualties.

Arab guerrillas shelled the Kibbutz Margalit farm commune near the Lebanese frontier near midnight Thursday but there were no casualties or damage, the Israeli spokesman said. Israeli forces returned the fire.

The leader of an Arab women's organization in the village of Kafr Dura near Hebron on the Israeli-held west bank of the Jordan River was sentenced to six months in jail for recruiting for the guerrilla organization Al-Fatah and passing military secrets to a guerrilla contact in Amman. Mrs. Hadija Abu Arhob, 26, pleaded guilty to the charges and was sentenced by an Israeli military court. In addition to the six-month sentence, there was a suspended sentence of 18 months.

Parades, Celebrations, Fireworks in Area

KINGSTON July Fourth marks a day of parades, celebrations and fireworks across the nation in honor of the birth of America, and here in Ulster County and in Northern Dutchess County.

several events are planned for the Fourth. In Kingston, the Kingston Paid Firefighters will hold their 14th annual Fourth of July celebration at Dietz Stadium. Scheduled for the evening are the Great Waltons, a trampoline act; the Mara Duo, a sky-diving exhibition, and, of course, a fabulous fireworks display. The gates of Dietz Stadium will open at 6 p.m., with entertainment beginning at dusk. Mayor Francis R. Koenig has designated July 4th as "Honor America Day" in Kingston, and has asked that at 2 p.m. on July 4 all church bells and fire house bells be rung as a clarion call to all to Honor America Day. In Saugerties, the holiday program will begin this evening at 7 p.m. with a Jaycee Night of music and other festivities. Saturday morning at 10 a.m. a sensational 10-division parade will step off, followed by continuous activities lasting into the evening when, at 9:30 a spectacular fireworks display will be offered. In Red Hook, the dedication of the Red Hook Recreational Park will mark Saturday's festivities, with many events planned for the afternoon at the park. In Rhinebeck, the annual flag decoration ceremony of Revolutionary War soldiers, will be held Sunday, 9:15 a.m., at the Dutch Church cemetery. There are said to be more than 43 veterans of that war, including one British soldier, buried in the cemetery.

Abortion Fees—$64 to $200

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—Fees for abortions under Medicaid ranging from $64 to $200 were set up Thursday by Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, state health commissioner.

Ingraham said the state budget division had approved the fees for abortion operations on Medicaid recipients starting at a low $64 for a dilatation and curettage (D&C) up to $200 for a hysterotomy, or removal of a fetus by a gynecological specialist.

The fee schedule was effective as of July 1, when the new abortion law went into effect. The schedule has no effect on fees charged for abortions performed on patients not receiving state medical assistance.

Meanwhile physicians in New York City tackled a backlog of some 2,000 abortions scheduled under the new "abortion on demand" law, some of them operating in their offices in defiance of restrictions ordered by health agencies.

The State Legislature did not prohibit office abortions when it passed the law last April. However, before the legislation went into effect Wednesday, the State Health Department and the City Board of Health laid down guidelines limiting abortions to hospitals and clinics.

Dr. Bernard Nathanson, director of gynecology at the Hospital for Joint Diseases and medical consultant to the National Association for the Repeal of Abortion Laws, said he would defy the guidelines and hoped the police would intervene so he could challenge the legality of any restrictions on the state law.

Nathanson said hospitals had limited space and personnel to attend to abortion cases and charged too much for the operation. He said office abortions were necessary to make the operation available to women who need it the most.

the poor. He said an abortion should cost no more than $200, about half of the cheapest hospital fee.

Nathanson's organization is holding a teach-in to prepare physicians to perform office abortions. He said about 80 were enrolled.

Meanwhile, Joseph T. English, director of the city's Health and Hospitals Corp., reported "things seem to be going smoothly." He said 24 abortions were performed in municipal hospitals Wednesday and 208 women were registered, bringing the total registration to 1,263.

Voluntary and profit hospitals were more guarded with statistics, but it appeared that about 125 abortions were performed in the city overall on the first day and more than 2,000 women were scheduled for abortions in the next few weeks. The new law provides for abortions only through the 24th week of pregnancy, although they can be performed later if the mother's life is in danger.

Emergency Service Unit Set Up for Woodstock

WOODSTOCK Woodstock is girding itself for the hordes of transients expected in the township during the summer months and the ensuing problems of providing emergency service where and when needed.

A group of citizens headed by the Rev. Steven Middernacht, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church have organized "The Family," an emergency help center with headquarters at 16 Library Lane.

The center will be opened as soon as volunteer professional help is available to aid those with medical, mental and drug problems.

During the organizational period a telephone will be manned 24-hours-per-day to handle any emergency. The number is 679-2485 (six-seve-nine, two-four-eight-five).

The Rev. Mr. Middernacht said the center provided with funds donated by individuals and merchants will be ready to handle rough drug trips, pregnancies, runaways and other mental and medical problems.

Those in sympathy with the problem and wishing to donate funds may contact the Rev. Mr. Middernacht, 28 Mill Hill Road, Woodstock. Checks may be made payable to The Family.

The group is attempting to have interns from New York City in attendance two or three days each week and local or area doctors to help with the program.

The Rev. Mr. Middernacht said that local residents who require emergency help may also call this number.

Further information is available on the bulletin board next to the Brittany Shop at the Village Green, or at the Cant Shop, Mill Hill Road.

The local pastor said all the professional help and any others who would like to help in this emergency are welcome.

He said the community, aware of the problems of hundreds of transients, many of whom require some form of help, has responded generously, but more help is needed.

Police Rescue Cliff Climber

KINGSTON State Police in Leeds rescued a would-be cliff climber who "froze" 110 feet in the air yesterday afternoon.

According to Sgt. P.D. Harrington of the Leeds Barracks, Trooper W. P. Fitzmaurice was on patrol in the Town of Catskill when a passerby stopped him and told him that someone was hanging from a cliff over the Embassy Club in Leeds. Fitzmaurice went to the scene to find 14-year old Patrick Rose, on the 125-foot cliff, 15 feet from the top.

Fitzmaurice radioed back to the barracks for help and was joined by Troopers R. H. Hussey and J. J. Syvertsen along with Sgt. Harrington.

The four went to the top of the cliff, strung two ropes on cliff climbing, together and lowered Fitzmaurice down to the youth. Fitzmaurice took the youth to the bottom.

"We had a case just like this about seven years ago," Sgt. Harrington said. "A kid decided to climb the cliff and then he gets scared."

Young Rose escaped with only a warning from the Troop-

Rochester Board...No Action

By NANCY SULLIVAN ROCHESTER

The Town Board of Rochester did not take any action following a public hearing Thursday evening regarding the placing on the November ballot the issue of lengthening the terms of office from two to four years of Town Clerk and the Superintendent of Highways.

Only three persons attended the public hearing which was in conjunction with the board's regular monthly meeting. The town board will vote on the proposal at the next meeting in August.

If the proposal is adopted by the board, it must be presented to the voters in November as a referendum. The proposal will not affect the terms of those presently in office but would go into effect after the next town election.

An automobile junk-yard application was received by the board from Harry Osterhoudt of Accord. A public hearing must be held before a license can be issued.

The town board approved changing the location of the polling district of the first election district of the Town of Rochester. The location will be changed from the Accord Firehouse to the new offices of the Town Clerk and meeting place.

Fireworks permits were granted to the Kerhonkson Fire Company and also to Camp Shangri-La of Accord.

The date for the dedication of the new Town Clerk's office and meeting room has been set for Saturday, July 25. Plans for the dedication ceremonies will be announced at a later date including the announcement of a guest speaker for the event.

The move into the new offices took place around May 26, according to Eileen Baker, the Town Garage, which also Road. The Town Clerk's office Town Clerk. The offices were included an addition to the garage was formerly located on Main constructed as an addition to the garage located off the Granite Street in Accord.

Two Firemen Retire, Promote Argulewicz

KINGSTON The Board of Fire Commissioners met this week and accepted the resignations, due to retirement, of Captain Joseph J. Miles and Firefighter Edwin Van Etten.

Both resignations were accepted with regret. Miles' is effective on July 12 and Van Etten's on July 11.

Lt. Francis T. Argulewicz was promoted to the rank of fire captain effective July 12 to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Captain Miles.

John G. Heppner Jr. and former Firefighter John Dwyer were appointed provisional firefighters to fill the existing vacancies until an eligible Civil Service list for the position becomes available.

Captain Miles was appointed effective turned to duty from the Army Jan. 15, 1942. He served in the U.S. Navy from April 4, 1944 to 39 Prospect Street.

Aug. 16, 1945. Upon his discharge from the Navy, Captain Miles returned to duty with the Kingston Fire Department. On rank of lieutenant on June 27, Feb. 8, 1961 he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant and on Dec. 16, 1969 he was promoted to the rank of fire captain.

Heppner was appointed provisional firefighter on June 19, Capt. Miles resides with his wife at 144 West O'Reilly Street.

Firefighter Van Etten was appointed third grade firefighter Feb. 13, 1941. He was inducted into the U.S. Army on Sept. 14, 1942. He reported for active duty on Sept. 28, 1942 and served in the 31st Infantry Division, Company C, Medical Battalion in New Guinea, Phil and Avenue.

Junkyard Hearing to Test City's Zoning Ordinance

KINGSTON time and money. According to Radcliffe if the pair are found guilty they could remain in jail are corrected.

"I guess we'll find out if our zoning ordinance has any teeth," was the way City Building Inspector George Radcliffe viewed the upcoming hearing on Andy Buzzanco and William Martin, owners of a junkyard across the street from Block Park on Abell Street.

Buzzanco and Martin, a resident of 147 West Chestnut Street, are listed as co-owners of the junkyard. They were charged with violation of the city zoning ordinance on Wednesday and let out on $250 bail for a hearing on Monday.

Building Inspector Radcliffe said that the building was also a fire hazard. Speaking of building code violations, Radcliffe said, "You name it and they've got it."

Radcliffe said that Buzzanco and Martin were warned on numerous occasions to clean up the property. "It's now up to the legal department," Radcliffe said referring to City Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein who will prosecute the case.

According to Radcliffe, Buzzanco was brought in on similar charges several years ago but failed to appear for his hearing and was charged with contempt of court, serving 30 days. The matter was apparently dropped until complaints from neighbors in the past six months moved the Koenig Administration to take action.

If Buzzanco and Martin are found guilty of violating the city ordinance, failure to comply could prove expensive both in

Weddings Announced

Barnett-Walker

Candace Zoe Barnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lee Barnett Sr. of West Hurley, wed Edward Russell Walker III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Russell Walker Jr., of Woodstock, on June 27 at a 4 p.m. double ring ceremony in the First Baptist Church of Kingston.

The Rev. Norman Blosat officiated. Mrs. Karl Pedersen was organist and George Deaton was soloist. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an empire style gown of white organza. The high neckline and puffed sleeves were enhanced with ribbon run Venice lace and the A-line skirt featured a chapel length detachable train. Her silk illusion veil was shirred to a Camelot cap of Venice lace motifs with a bow and streamer detail of pale pink satin ribbon. She carried a hand bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

The bride's sister, Holly Ann Barnett of West Hurley, served as maid of honor in a gown of jubilee pink saki. The neckline and abbreviated sleeves were framed with Florentine lace and the Empire waistline was encircled with azalea pink satin ribbon terminating at the back in bow and streamer detail. She wore a stylized headpiece in matching color and carried a fireside basket of pink daisies and baby's breath.

Attendants were Patricia Walker of West Hurley; Cathy Whitaker of Silver Springs, Md.; Cindy and Janice Walker of Woodstock, sisters of the bridegroom.

Their pale pink gowns were styled identically to that worn by the honor attendant. They also wore stylized headpieces in pale pink and carried fireside baskets of pink daisies and baby's breath. Thomas Gallagher of Kingston was best man. Ushering was Robert Fuldner of West Hurley; Steve Lippencott of Woodstock; and Rick Vespa of Maryland.

A reception was given in the church parlor.

The bride was graduated from Ontario Central High School in 1970. Her husband was graduated from Ulster County Community College and plans to attend Huston University in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnett will reside in Houston, Texas.

Storms-Spencer

Karen Christie Storms exchanged nuptial vows with Richard A. Spencer in the Old Dutch Church in Kingston on Sunday, June 28 at 3 p.m. Officiating was the Rev. Robert A. Hess. John Park provided traditional wedding music for the occasion. The soloist was Peter Sanson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Storms of 232 Smith Avenue, Kingston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Spencer of 81 Washington Avenue, Saugerties.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of silk organza accented with a re-embroidered lace applique at the hemline. The fitted empire bodice of re-embroidered lace and organza featured a round scoop neckline and long full sleeves gathered on a tight lace cuff. Her chapel length train was of organza with seed pearls to match the headpiece which held her imported silk veil.

She carried an arrangement of Georgiana orchids with stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. Joseph Mehm of Rifton, N.Y., served as matron of honor in an A-line floor length gown of off-white Victorian cotton. Red embroidered buds accented the gown and she wore a Dior bow with short face veil. Mrs. Mehm carried a cascade of red miniature carnations, ivy and baby's breath.

Mrs. Kenneth Melville of Tannersville served as an attendant. Her gown and accessories were identical to that worn by the matron of honor.

James Spencer of Quarryville served as best man for his brother. Ushering were Robert McConkey of Saugerties; John Naccarato of Saugerties; and Robert Spica, West Saugerties. Scott Spencer, the bridegroom's nephew, was ringbearer.

A reception for 140 guests was given at the Sawyerkill. The bride is a graduate of Fisher Junior College in Boston, Mass., and is employed by Ferroxcube Corp. in Mt. Marion, as secretary in the Corporate Sales Dept.

Her husband, alumnus of Saugerties High School, attended Dutchess Community College and is completing his studies at UCCB. He is also employed by Ferroxcube as senior electronics technician.

When Mr. and Mrs. Spencer return from their wedding trip to Canada, they will reside in Blue Mountain, Saugerties.

Louise Petersen Takes Vows; Weds In California

Miss Louise Petersen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Petersen Jr., 63 Wrentham Street, Kingston, exchanged nuptial vows with Robert Larry Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Mitchell of Bradford, Arkansas, in the U.S. Naval Hospital Chapel, Camp Pendleton, Calif., on Saturday, May 16.

Chaplain Albrecht, U.S.N., officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white satin lace overlay, scooped neck and long lace sleeves. The gown featured a lace train and her illusion veil was held by a satin bow headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink tea roses.

Mrs. James Hand, Navy Nurse, of New Hampshire was matron of honor. She wore a full-length, short-sleeved gown of light blue crepe and carried a bouquet of white daisies and yellow tea roses.

Tommy Thompkin of California served as best man for his cousin.

A dinner reception was held for the wedding party at Flying Bridge Restaurant, Oceanside, Calif.

The bride is a graduate of Saugerties High School and Kingston Hospital School of Nursing. She is serving in the Navy Nurse Corps, stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif. Her husband was graduated from Bradford High School, Bradford, Ark. and has attended Arkansas State University. He is serving with the U. S. Marine Corps, stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Kingston Band Concert Tuesday

The Kingston Concert Band will give a performance at 8 p.m. on the Academy Green Tuesday, July 7 under the direction of Lee Herrington.

Admission is free. Marches, overtures, a sonata, tarantella and selections from "Oliver" will highlight the program. Keith Dougherty will play a trumpet solo in "Concerto for Trumpet" by Harry James and a bass sectional solo will be heard in "Tarantella" by Harold Walters.

The concert is made possible through the Musicians Trust Fund of Local 215, AFM.

Family Discount For 'Nutcracker'

The Saratoga Performing Arts Center, in an effort to bring to as many area children as possible the magic and pageantry of the New York City Ballet's production of "Nutcracker," is offering four performances of the great classic ballet under a special family discount plan.

The plan enables the head of a family paying full price for his ticket to bring his wife and children for half-price admissions. It will be in effect for the "Nutcracker" evening performances tonight and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and for the matinee Sunday, July 5, at 3:30 p.m.

Patrons taking advantage of the discount must purchase their tickets at either the Center's main box office on Route 50 or at its Hall of Springs box office. Discount tickets for all available seats may be bought at any time up to the start of a performance.

The New York City Ballet production of "Nutcracker," with Tchaikovsky's ever popular score and choreography by George Balanchine, is performed by the full company of dancers along with 39 area children. Also featuring the sumptuous sets of Rouben Ter-Arutunian, it has been seen by more people than any other presentation in the history of ballet.

Nuptial Vows Taken

Johnson-Hoyt

Miss Vicki Lee Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Johnson of 71 Country Club Lane, Woodstock, exchanged marriage vows with Mark L. Hoyt, son of Mrs. Lorraine Hoyt of Mt. Pleasant and James Hoyt of Hurley Heights, on June 20 at a 5:30 p.m. ceremony in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, Kingston.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. William Peckham, retired minister. The Rev. Mr. Peckham officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents 30 years ago. Mrs. Edward Decamillis was organist for the occasion.

Mr. Johnson gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an A-line gown of plisse crepe fashioned with high neckline and short sleeves. The gown, which was made by the bride's sister, had a cathedral length detachable train. Her veil was silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath with pale yellow streamers.

Miss Bonnie Dee Johnson of Phoenicia was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a baby blue and white ottoman gown similar in style to that of the bride's. A headpiece of white and blue daisies held her blue veil and she carried a colonial nosegay of ice blue and white daisies and baby's breath with blue streamers.

Miss Tina Bromberg of Woodstock and Miss Andrea Biewas of Buffalo were the attendants. Their gowns were identical to that of the maid of honor's. Their headpieces consisted of blue daisies and blue veiling. They carried colonial nosegays of ice blue daisies with blue streamers.

Lindsay R. Hoyt Jr., of Mt. Pleasant was best man for his cousin. Ushering were Robert Serrano of White Plains and Dale Chauncey of Mt. Pleasant.

A reception was given at the Capri 400 in Port Ewen for 100 guests.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of Ontario Central School, Boiceville, and is now a junior at State University College at Brockport where she is majoring in speech. Her husband is a 1966 graduate of Ontario Central School, Boiceville, and a 1970 graduate of Springfield College, Springfield, Mass. He will be teacher and coach at Brighton Central School in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt will be residing near Rochester, N.Y.

Dresser-McDermott

On June 28 at 1:30 p.m. Annabelle Marie Dresser of Olivebridge, N. Y., exchanged marriage vows with Jerome Peter McDermott, son of Mrs. Karen McDermott of 2 John Street, Kingston. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dresser of Olivebridge.

Officiating clergyman was the Rev. Ebenezer Mane of the Fair Street Reformed Church in Kingston. Traditional wedding music was played.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peau de soie fashioned with an empire bodice and long sleeves of peau d'ange lace.

Her long mantilla edged with matching lace, was draped to a Camelot cap. She carried a continental bouquet of purple asters, yellow daisies, white carnations and open red roses.

Debra Fitchner of Boiceville was honor attendant and Dale Barringer of Krumville was the bridesmaid. Their gowns of lime green ottoman were styled with high necklines and abbreviated sleeves. The empire waists were encircled with sashes of self-fabric and they wore stylized headpieces with tulle veils. They carried yellow and white daisies.

Albert Donn of Woodstock was best man for his brother. Ushering was Joseph Dresser of Olivebridge, the bride's brother.

A reception for 100 guests was given at The Capri 400 in Port Ewen.

The bride, who is a graduate of Ontario Central School, wore a white and multi-colored ensemble with a white orchid corsage for her trip to Canada. Her husband, who served with the U.S. Army, is a manager at Shop-Rite, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. McDermott will reside in Palenville, N.Y.

Hibernians Hold Upstate Convention

Three Kingston women recently returned from the state convention of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Ancient Order of Hibernians held at Rochester, New York, June 5-27.

Representing this area as delegates were: Winifred Brady, vice president of the Ulster County Chapter; Hattie Finn, secretary of Division No. 4, and Mary Winchell, president of Division No. 5.

On the opening day of the convention, 166 delegates from throughout the state, paraded from the Flagship Hotel, convention headquarters, to St. Mary's Church. The parade was led by the Rochester Celtic Pipe Band. At the church delegates were welcomed by Bishop Kearney. Mass was then celebrated with Bishop Hogan officiating.

At the convention sessions, delegates' reports were read and committees were appointed. Ideas and programs were exchanged.

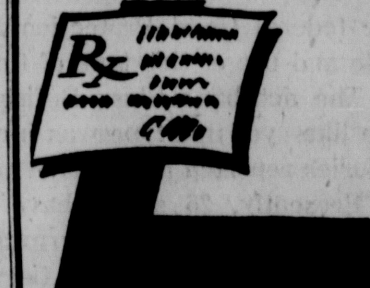

The climax of the convention was a state dinner at which new state officers were installed.

The local delegates reported the sessions to be enlightening, educational and entertaining.

56th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Vaughn of Millbrook Avenue, Hurley, entertained friends at a dinner-party June 30 on the occasion of their 56th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Vaughn is a retired Kingston High School teacher.

a "MIRACLE" in the MAKING

Many illnesses which, at best, meant long and costly convalescence are now being cured with a swiftness and a surety that border on the miraculous. But in truth, every medicine that relieves pain and restores health is a "miracle" made to order with professional skill and painstaking care. Measured in terms of priceless relief, the real "miracle" of today's medicines is their reasonable cost.

Fireworks Control

Cheerful thought for Independence Day:

As many as 10,000 Americans, most of them children, may suffer painful and possibly crippling injuries from fireworks over the holiday.

The prediction is based on a study of over 2,000 fireworks incidents in 1969. The survey, just revealed by the National Fire Protection Association, covered the entire country but represents only a portion of the actual number of incidents.

Among the 2,000 incidents recorded, there were five fatalities. Injuries ranged from blindings—43 cases—to maimings—35 cases—to burns, cuts and abrasions. In 337 cases the victims were holding the fireworks when they exploded and 204 were injured from fireworks thrown at them.

About 72 per cent of the victims were under 21. 58 per cent were 15 or younger and almost 29 per cent were aged 1 to 10.

The most significant finding of the survey, according to Charles S. Morgan, general manager of the association, is that 42 per cent of all injuries were caused by Class C fireworks. These are the small firecrackers, sparklers, fountains and other devices generally regarded as safe. Sparklers alone, which reach a heat of 1,800 degrees, caused 28 eye injuries.

"This strongly emphasizes the critical deficiency of the federal Child Protection Act of 1966 which permits sale and use of this type of fireworks," charges Morgan.

The act bans Class B fireworks—cherry bombs and the like—yet this type was involved in 24 per cent of the injuries reported last year.

Presently, 26 states have adopted the Model State Fireworks Law which permits only paper caps and licensed public displays of fireworks. But even in these states illegal fireworks traffic is on the increase.

The association advocates a federal ban on Class C fireworks, strict enforcement and a concerted effort by state and local agencies to stop fireworks bootlegging.

Until there is better control of fireworks, however, a large part of the responsibility for safe and sane Fourth rests with parents.

Optimistic Forecast

Fortune magazine, the bible of finance and business, reports that the U.S. economy has turned the corner. It forecasts real economic growth will accelerate over the next 18 months. The recovery has been the work of the consumer, whose increased buying pushed the Gross National Product slightly higher during the quarter just ended and will continue to lead the recovery through next year.

The magazine makes a business forecast semi-annually. This one is in the July issue, just out. It is the work of one of the largest and best trained staffs in the world, in its field.

The forecast goes on to say that the nation is successfully negotiating a massive redeployment of its priorities from an economy based on defense and business investment, to one directed more toward consumption, housing and social welfare. President Nixon has mentioned, in recent addresses, the transition from a wartime to a peacetime economy and the dislocations this has made in employment; due in part to the fact that 700,000 returned service men and defense workers are having to be absorbed into the labor force.

After two years of showing almost no gain, Fortune says, productivity or output per man-hour rose a full one per cent in the last quarter alone, and unemployment figures declined. Business has cut payrolls to get costs down and profit margins up, but Fortune says the paring will be reflected in a slower increase in prices. Again, this was along Mr. Nixon's thinking, in setting up a watch on the relation of production to wage increases.

Because this is the first optimistic report from such an authoritative source, business and industry, as well as government, must welcome the forecast and hope it will all be borne out. We can use some authentic sunshine.

A new satellite, equipped with a TV camera and X-ray sensors, has just been launched from Cape Kennedy. It's infrared and X-ray will detect the exhaust of a rocket rising off its launch pad; its camera will record troop movements, pinpoint missile sites and other military activities. It's to watch the USSR, Red China, and North Vietnam—to let us sleep better; and to give early warning. Now it will be up to us to be ready and know what to do when warned.

The House clearance of a five per cent increase in Social Security January 1 next was accompanied by a Republican-sponsored automatic cost-of-living increase in future years. This is the most important provision for the aged, whose fixed income loses purchasing power when prices rise.

It's Big Enough for All of Us

David Lawrence Says Anti-Negro Charge Answered By Nixon Administration

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that the White House takes the trouble to issue a rebuttal to a specific speech of criticism in the racial controversies of the day. But evidently the address by Bishop Stephen G. Spottswood, chairman of the board of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, charging that the Nixon administration has become "anti-Negro" was too much to let go unchallenged.

The White House on Tuesday sent a telegram to the Bishop signed by Leonard Garment, Chief Liaison man for President Nixon with civil rights groups. The message minced no words and answered the speech of Monday night point by point.

Mr. Garment declared at the outset that the comments made were "an unfair and disheartening attack" on the administration in view of all the efforts it has made to advance civil rights. He detailed how the construction trades have been opened up to Negroes on a major scale for the first time. He noted that 1.5 billion dollars has been proposed to aid desegregation in the schools and help fund experimental projects to promote interracial experiences among children where racial isolation persists. He emphasized the landmark family assistance plan which, he said, would provide for the first time a floor under the incomes of every family, and the greatly improved food-assistance programs. He pointed out that President Nixon has named "more blacks to policy-making positions than any previous administration." Mr. Garment declared:

"In addition, your comments misstate and misrepresent the record of the administration so as to present it in a highly distorting light."

The telegram gave details about the progress in the public schools, particularly in the 11 southern states where the number of black students in desegregated system will have increased from 164,000 at the end of the 1968-69 school year to well over one million at the start of the 1970-71 school year.

Mention was made also of Bishop Spottswood's charge that the administration has weakened the Voting Rights Act, when, as a matter of fact, "only a week ago, Roy Wilkins, Clarence Mitchell and Senator Brooke, 'hailed' the President for signing the bill and praised his 'statesmanship' for doing so."

There were other points in the Spottswood speech which Mr. Garment took up. He concluded with this comment: "It is one thing to criticize, to give voice to deeply felt concerns and to articulate real disappointments. Everyone benefits from such a debate. It is an entirely different thing to search out ways to portray the actions of this administration in the worst possible light, to rally every fear, and reinforce every anxiety. Such a message, painting a false picture of what the administration has done, is doing, and hopes to do, sows distrust and makes makes commonly agreed-on goals more difficult to achieve."

"I note that even now, as speakers at your convention are attacking every aspect of the administration's record in this area, and doing so without a balancing word, members of the administration are working with many of your colleagues on important projects of mutual concern."

This, of course, is not the end of the story. Sooner or later, there will have to be an explanation as to why the Nixon administration was jumped on by the chairman of the board of the NAACP, while coincidentally so many members and officers of the same organization are working in harmony with the administration and are praising its efforts.

Schisms occur, of course, in all groups which are dealing with legislative matters, and the NAACP is composed of extremists as well as moderates. It may well be that within the organization there will be further discussion as to what the association's attitude toward the Nixon administration really is and whether a declaration of some sort should be made to clarify its position so far as the public is concerned.

Clearly, the Nixon administration is not comfortable with the charge that it is "anti-Negro," something that probably will have a political effect in the next campaign. For the administration is just as much interested in black votes as white votes, and is not trying to cater to either side — this is what its spokesmen are saying whenever they discuss politics with the press.

Jack Anderson Says Mayo Favors Lumbermen; Rivers Controls Military Patronage

WASHINGTON — On the same day President Nixon released a long-awaited report favoring the timber industry, the chairman who directed the timber study showed up at Odell, Ore., for a weekend in the woods with two lumber barons.

Budget boss Robert Mayo, who headed the timber task force, was the guest of Faye and Loran Stewart, vice president and president of the Bohemia Lumber Company. The firm does a $35 million business each year in lumber, plywood and related products.

Loran Stewart is also a former president of the nation's lumber lobby, known more formally as the National Forest Products Association, which has lobbied for the kind of recommendations that Mayo's task force produced.

The task force report contended that the "national forest cut can be expanded" be seven billion board feet by 1978. This is the sort of statement that sends lumber magnates hurrying happily to their counting houses.

"The Forest Service should be encouraged . . . urged the report, "to increase timber yields from the national forests." The national forests, of course, are owned by the taxpayers, and conservationists want them preserved for wildlife and recreation.

Even as White House reporters filed their stories about the timber study, Mayo was being chauffeured from a speech in Eugene, Ore., to the Stewarts' handsome woodland lodge. They spent the weekend together relaxing and dining among the Oregon uplands and visiting lumber projects in Bohemia's private helicopter.

Mayo was whisked back to Eugene in the same corporate helicopter. His trip to Oregon, however, was paid by the government.

Footnote: House Republican leader Gerald Ford has allowed the lumber men to ferry him around the country in a private jet plane. It will be interesting to watch what stand he takes on the Mayo recommendations.

Military Patronage
House Armed Services Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., the white-haired godfather of the military-industrial complex, has much to say about which parts of America shall be blessed with military installations.

Just below him in seniority is Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., who also exerts a powerful influence upon the placement of military facilities. Should the South decide to rise again, Rivers and Hebert have insured that the odds will be better next time.

The Naval Facilities Engineering Command judiciously established offices in the home towns of both Rivers and Hebert. But military cutbacks, alas, forced the Navy to choose between the two.

Henry J. Taylor Says The Immortal Jefferson

On the 4th of July, 1826, the hollow, reverberating boom of a cannon fired in Charlottesville, Va., signaled the death of Thomas Jefferson. It is a day of four anniversaries.

Incredibly, the booming signal came on exactly the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence's adoption. And three of our first five Presidents — Jefferson, John Adams, James Monroe — died on the 4th of July.

Thomas Jefferson was 83. Adams died a few hours after Jefferson; Monroe, Jefferson's Virginia hilltop neighbor, five years later.

Incredibly, too, what were Jefferson's last words? His devoted daughter and grandson knelt at his bed. "This is the Fourth?" he asked in his dying breath.

The Commonwealth of Virginia is renowned for its gift to us of eight Presidents: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Harrison, Tyler, Taylor and Wilson. Although Zachary Taylor's parents carried him off, after a year, to what is now Kentucky, he was born in Orange County, Virginia, and Kentucky itself was at that time part of Virginia.

Seven Virginians signed the Declaration of Independence. They were exceeded only by Pennsylvania's nine. And, said Jefferson, "no hand trembled in affixing its signature."

In the Declaration Jefferson was writing of a river. The river was freedom and life; it flowed into the oceans, and the ocean was America. He believed in mankind not as fated, but in mankind as struggling; that the meek of the earth need not be victims. He saw life, freedom, security and a better living for all as problems to be mastered. Accordingly, the great Declaration begins: "When in the course of human events . . . and for the first time in man's history announced that all rights come from a sovereign, not from a government, but from God, and that they are 'inalienable.'"

Jefferson is buried halfway up the beautiful Monticello hillside. Antiquity makes the son of Priam say to the shade: "Do not judge Hector by his small grave; the Iliad, Homer, the Greeks in flight, there you see the sepulcher." Jefferson's grave is marked by only a simple gray granite shaft that he designed. It is less than 17 feet tall. Does it matter? It is an unchallenged pedestal. As said of Lincoln, Jefferson makes all mankind taller, and always will.

President Wilson expressed this in his 4th of July oration at Monticello years ago: "It is the spirit of the man by which he rules us from his urn," a eulogy he repeated at the American Army graveyard at Suresnes, France, May 30, 1919.

The column on Virginia-born Henry Clay's tomb at Lexington, Ky., is only eight feet high. Benjamin Franklin's grave in Philadelphia's Christ Church Burial Ground has merely a stone slab marked Benjamin and Deborah Franklin, 1790. Only a plain white headstone in the Bladen, Oxfordshire, village churchyard marks the grave of Winston Churchill, Michelangelo, too. Just a small marker marks his burial at Florence's church of Santa Croce. History needs more?

The whole setting catches your heart. For it is a stirring, awesome feeling to stand under the whispering trees and in the brilliant fires of the Virginia flowers in the presence of America's Jefferson.

Come close. Read the chiseled epitaph Jefferson wrote for his headstone. He gave the wording to his daughter, Martha Randolph. And, surely, Jefferson's greatness is exemplified not by what is written on his resting place but by what he himself did not write for it. He told his daughter that only this inscription and not one word more was to appear:

HERE WAS BURIED THOMAS JEFFERSON, AUTHOR OF THE DECLARATION OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE, OF THE STATE OF VIRGINIA FOR RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AND FATHER OF THE UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA. That is all.

Jefferson was Governor of Virginia, you recall. He was elected to Congress. He was appointed Minister to France. Jefferson was Secretary of State. He was elected Vice-President. And, oh, yes, a grateful Republic elected him President of the United States, twice. But no mention at all, Jefferson told his daughter why.

"The things that are not on my inscription," he said, "are things the people did for me. The things that are on it are things I did for the people."

On the 4th of July, and forever, how richly this immortal American deserves to rest in peace at Monticello.

Nyquist Overruled on Exclusion Of Some Colleges From Bundy Aid

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — State Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist has lost the first court test of his decision to exclude some colleges from the so-called Bundy aid program on the ground that they are church-dominated.

State Supreme Court Justice Russell B. Hunt ruled Thursday that Nyquist had been "unreasonable and discriminatory" in denying assistance to Canisius College in Buffalo.

Canisius is one of four colleges traditionally regarded as Roman Catholic institutions that initiated court action to override Nyquist's decision.

Decisions still are pending in the challenges by the College of New Rochelle and Marymount Manhattan. Iona College in New Rochelle will present its arguments here July 24.

The Bundy aid program, for which the 1970 legislature appropriated $26 million, provides no strings attached assistance to private colleges and universities, based on the number of students they graduate in an academic year.

Canisius seeks $277,000 in aid. Nyquist originally included 52 institutions of higher learning and excluded 33 others as constitutionally ineligible.

He based this decision on the section of the State Constitution known as the Blaine Amendment. That provision forbids state support of schools "wholly or in part" under the control of a religious denomination or in which denominational doctrine is taught.

Canisius, New Rochelle and Marymount Manhattan have challenged Nyquist's interpretation of the facts they presented in seeking inclusion. Iona will further by arguing that the Bundy Law and Blaine Amendment are invalid.

Ultimately, the church state issue is expected to reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

Hunt noted in his decision that Nyquist had decided to grant funds to three other institutions also viewed as Catholic schools: Fordham University in New York City, Manhattanville in Purchase and St. John Fisher in Rochester.

Justice said Nyquist had given no satisfactory explanation of why they were deemed eligible and Canisius was not.

"The discrimination between those included and the excluded Canisius is unreasonable and discriminatory and a denial of equal protection under the law," Hunt wrote in his decision.

He pointed out that Canisius does not train students for the religious ministry, does not have a seminary, does not base admissions on religious belief and does not require attendance at chapel on campus.

In other words, he accepted Canisius' contention that it is not "dominated" by the Catholic Church.

The Education Department's legal staff did not try to distinguish between Canisius and Fordham, Manhattanville and St. John Fisher when arguments were presented before Hunt last May.

The department now must decide whether to accept the ruling and declare Canisius eligible or else ascertain whether it can appeal to a higher court.

12 GI Sitdowners Cleared of Mutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — The action completes review of court-martial convictions of a total of 24 soldiers who participated in a sit-down demonstration to protest alleged brutality at the San Francisco Presidio stockade have been cleared of mutiny charges.

The Army Court of Military Review threw out the mutiny convictions Thursday, but upheld court-martial convictions on the lesser offense of willful disobedience of an order of a commissioned officer.

A 13th soldier's conviction for willful disobedience also was affirmed by the court.

Convictions of 10 other soldiers on charges of mutiny were previously reduced to disobedience of an order. One case also was thrown out.

The courts martial handed down sentences as severe as 15 years imprisonment and dishonorable discharge. But the military review court reduced the penalties to bad conduct discharges, forfeiture of pay and allowances and imprisonment at hard labor for as much as a year.

Public Hearing Slated July 30 On UCCC Budget

KINGSTON — Thursday, July 30 has been set for the public hearing on the Ulster County Community College budget.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Legislative Chambers on the fifth floor of the Ulster County Office Building.

It is expected that copies of the budget will not be available until July 15 at the earliest.

Compiling the budget this year is more detailed than in the past with college officials complying with a directive from the Legislature for a line-item budget.

Formal approval of the July 30 hearing date is necessary and it is anticipated that the Legislature, which meets in regular session next Thursday, will act on a resolution setting the time and place.

Case Dismissed In City Court

KINGSTON — Because a complainant in a court case lied in an affidavit that resulted in the arrest of William M. Lawless, 49, of 21 South Boulevard, Red Hook, the defendant was discharged Thursday by Special City Judge George A. Beck, and the charge was dismissed.

The dismissal was made on motion by the district attorney's office. Lawless had been booked on a warrant on June 18, charged with unlawfully dealing with a child. In court yesterday the complainant admitted she had lied in the affidavit.

The girl had told authorities she had obtained alcoholic beverages at a local liquor store, where Lawless is employed.

Judge, Probers Named In Hobart Confrontation

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — A Cobleskill justice has been named to preside and two Rochester attorneys to investigate events surrounding the Geneva confrontation between police and 150 Hobart College students and faculty last month.

Governor Rockefeller named Justice T. Paul Kane of Cobleskill Thursday as presiding judge at the extraordinary session of State Supreme Court in Ontario County.

The action came one day after completion of a special trial at Hudson Falls, presided over by Kane, in which two Hamilton County officials were given sentences and placed on probation after pleading guilty to misuse of government funds.

Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, acting at the request of the governor, also named two attorneys to act as assistant attorneys general in place of Ontario County Dist. Atty. Willard C. Best, who had asked to be superseded.

Lefkowitz advised the governor he would appoint E. Garret Cleary and Leon N. Armer of Rochester as special assistant attorney generals to conduct the probe into the June 5 event in which the student-faculty group became angered over the arrest of five students on drug and obstruction charges.

Police released the five to avoid possible violence.

Rockefeller noted the justice and the two special assistant attorney generals recently performed similar duties in a special investigation in Hamilton County that resulted in convictions.

In announcing his appointments, Lefkowitz said: "These two men bring to this important assignment outstanding records as experienced and fair prosecutors. Their public service in the past has earned for them the respect and confidence of the community."

"I am confident they will do an outstanding job in the public interest. They will have a completely free hand in conducting this important investigation."

The extraordinary term will begin at 10 a.m. at the Ontario County Courthouse and continue as long as necessary.

Says The Green Thumb

Avoid Evergreen Jungle

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Don't let your evergreens grow into a jungle! A lot of man-made rules may scare you off the job, but it shouldn't. Here are a few tips for pruning your evergreens: Arborvitae. The globe or round type can be sheared any time. Just take a pair of hedge shears and shear off the ends that extend beyond the normal outline of the plant. This makes a nice, thick plant. The Columnar or upright type can also be sheared. If it's too tall take a saw and cut the tip back. Then round off the top and you'll never know the plant has been shortened. An annual shearing of both the round and upright Arborvitae stimulates new growth and makes the foliage thickness. That's why pruning is good for all plants. It makes them thicker and stronger.

Cellar Moisture From Humidity

By MR. FIX
The basement that seemed perfectly dry and water-tight all winter and spring is suddenly damp all over. There are beads of water on the walls, damp spots on the floor.
Blame it on the humidity that comes with summer weather. There's a difference between seepage and condensation and if you had no water before — following the late winter thaw and the spring rains — then seepage is not likely to be your problem.
Look carefully and you will notice that those damp spots on the floor are right below cold water pipes and that those pipes are covered with drops of water.
Eliminating condensation is a matter of doing many things, a trial and error process. Condensation occurs when warm, moisture-laden air hits a cold surface — the basement walls, cold water pipes, toilet bowls. Part of the cure is to eliminate some of the moisture before it enters the air.
Clothes dryers should be vented so that moisture escapes outdoors. Exhaust fans in kitchens will cut down some of the moist air in the house. There should be fans in bathrooms, too. Opening a window when washing clothes or cooking will help.
Use an electric fan to keep air moving. Open windows in the evening when the air is cooler.
You can wring much of the water out of the air with a dehumidifier. The electric dehumidifier has what is essentially a refrigerator coil that cools the air as it passes over it. This causes condensation which runs off into a pan or drain.
Best to get the kind that turns itself on and off depending on how much moisture there is in the air. Then it will function whenever needed.
Getting moisture out of the air is part of the answer. Warming up the surfaces on which it condenses is the other half.
Cover water pipes with felt.

Canadian hemlock also can take a lot of shearing. If you don't trim them they'll grow 60 feet tall. A hemlock looks best if allowed to "weep" a little, in it at night. Works like a charm. By the way, please do not write and ask if we have an interest in a brewery. Every time we mention beer for snails we get letters from folks asking us this question.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Our apple tree was loaded with small fruit. Recently much of it dropped to the ground. Does this mean something is lacking in the soil?"
Answer: No. Nature thinned your crop. This is called "June Drop"—and it's nature's way of thinning the fruit that cannot be nourished by the tree. Many apples tend to bear every other year, due to too many fruits setting. A heavy crop is a heavy strain on a tree, preventing flower-bud formation for the next season. It's a good idea to hand-thin your apples, spacing them four to six inches apart.

BEER FOR SNAILS: We've mentioned this several times, but would like to remind you again that if snails are a problem with your tomatoes you can banish them easily. Use stale beer. Take some flat or shallow dishes (TV trays) and place a couple near your tomato plants. Pour in some beer and the snails will commit suicide.

cork, asbestos or fiberglass insulation. If using the latter, then add a second wrapping of aluminum tape. Leave exposed only the shutoff valves.
This will eliminate the cold surface on which the moisture condenses. Covering toilet tanks with fabric covers will have the same effect.

Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Australia's Margaret Smith Court made their introduction to the Wimbledon center court and to the 15,000 persons out there today to see them renew their never-ending duel that has been going on since 1963 when "Big Marge" beat Billie Jean to win the first of her two titles.

Mrs. Court, just 13 day short of her 28th birthday, is favorite at 4-6 against one leading London bookmaker to complete the third leg in her bid for her first ever grand slam of big-four titles—Australian, French, Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

Twice previously, in 1962 and again last year, she came within an ace of becoming only the second woman since Maureen Connolly to complete the slam but was foiled at Wimbledon. In 1962 she was beaten in first round by Billie Jean, while Britain's Ann Jones upset her in the semis last year.

Billie Jean, 26, a three-time winner between 1966-68, enters the match confident she will win.

Frank Spinneweber belted a home run, double and two singles in four appearances to the plate to lead Mid-City Lanes to a 11-2, win over Horn of Plenty. Mid-City Lanes remains undefeated with eight straight wins in the City Slow Pitch softball league.

In other games, Caribbeans topped the Chargers 13-6, Frank and Ed's defeated Anchorage 8-4 and the Jets bombed Rolling Acres 19-5.

By (UPI) — Second baseman Dick McAuliffe made an excellent play in snaring Clarke's grounder but he had to throw while falling to the ground and it pulled Nickerson off the bag as Clarke streaked across first.

"It was my fault," Nickerson said. "If I had stayed on the bag, I would have had it. My

Selma Haunts Mets

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Phillies used three straight pinch hits and pulled off a surprise victory over the New York Yankees last night.

Relief ace Dick Selma, a former Met, saved both games Thursday night as the Philadelphia Phillies swept a two-night doubleheader from New York, 5-1 and 3-2.

Pinch-hitter Tony Taylor opened the inning with a double and Ron Stone and Byron order in the ninth inning of the first game after the Phils rallied for six runs in the eighth inning, came on in the eighth inning of the nightcap to relieve Chris Short with one out and runners on first and third.

Battle for

The two losses dropped the Mets into a virtual tie with the Pittsburgh for first place in the National League's Eastern Division.

Don Cardwell, making his first start of the season, suffered the loss. It was his second.

Denny Doyle singled in the deciding run in the fifth after Doc Edwards singled and was sacrificed to second by Short. The Phils scored twice in the fourth. Oscar Gamble singled and was forced by Don Money, who took third on a single by Johnny Briggs. Ron Stone doubled in one run and Hutto

New York scored once in the first when Tommie Agee doubled, took third on Wayne Garrett's groundout and scored as shortstop Larry Bowa threw out Ken Singleton. Donn Clendenon made it 3-2 in the sixth with his ninth homer of the season.

The Phillies' six-run eighth inning of the opener ended 53 innings of frustration against

New York pitching in Connie Mack Stadium. The runs were the first against the Mets since June, 1969 in the Phillies' home park.

Niekro also helped his own cause by singling in two runs in a three-run second inning. Jim Northrup and Price hit solo homers to account for the other runs.

In other games, Cleveland edged Baltimore, 10-9. Minnesota beat Kansas City, 5-2. Oakland drubbed Chicago, 10-6. California topped Milwaukee 10-7, and Boston blanked Washington, 5-0.

The Indians beat the Orioles for the first time this year as Ray Fosse hit a three-run homer and Tony Horton hit for the cycle.

Golf's Big Problem

CHARLES J. TIANO

Bulging membership rosters and the admission of a new breed of player have brought inevitable problems to golf clubs and one of the worst is slow play.

Very few golfers enjoy spending more than 3½ hours on any golf course—no matter how beautiful the day. Nor do they like being "held up" when they are ready to play. This happens all too frequently a recent survey by the United States Seniors Golf Association revealed because:

1) Caddies, too often untrained, carry double bags and are, in most cases, nothing more than "bag carriers."

2) Some players do not know how to use golf cars efficiently.

MORE IMPORTANTLY, a limited number of players are dawdling along and holding up play on the whole course. Only a few golfers do this intentionally—they are just thoughtless or have never learned to play golf properly.

In the case of the younger players, they've just been watching too much TV golf, especially around the greens.

Consequently, with five per cent of the players spoiling the game for the other 95 per cent, it is imperative that golf club officials do something about it without imposing on the older players any sense of being rushed or being forced to walk faster than they should.

THE STUDY REVEALED that no changes in the rules of golf were necessary in order to save time—only a change in point of view. If every player would show the same courtesy to those playing behind as is shown to his own group—everyone would benefit.

To do this, you need not walk faster—but you do have to acquire the habit of playing alertly. This all boils down to being ready to play your next shot as soon as it is your turn.

It is ironic that the use of a car in many cases does not save time. Here are a few tips on how to maneuver the buggy:

1) You park a car in a location where someone does not have to walk back to get it. Golf cars should be parked at a practical point on the line drawn between the green and the next tee.

2) Upon approaching a green, when you can readily approximate what kind of shot you will have, you take the club from your bag that you will use, along with your putter. If you have the wrong club, get the club you want and indicate to your playing partners that they may play out of turn.

3) As soon as your ball is on the green, you study the line of your putt as long as you do not interfere with another player.

4) You repair all ball marks while waiting for other players.

5) You never replay a missed putt; never mark your card while on the green; and leave the green immediately when play is completed. If you lag your putt to within 2 feet of the cup, putt it out. Don't mark putts endlessly. The U.S. Open happens only once a year and chances are you haven't qualified.

The player who has the honor should proceed immediately to the next tee. Let someone else bring the car. Mark the score card for the previous hole after the drive has been made.

WE'LL NOT BELABOR golf courtesy. It is generally well understood, but too many golfers don't practice it. Consideration for the players behind you is all important with today's crowded courses, caddies carrying double and the use of golf cars.

Golf club officials bear a responsibility in making a country club a place to be enjoyed and not a place where a golfer is subjected to five-hour steamships every weekend.

The fact that a man is accepted into a club, pays his initiation fee and dues does not automatically make him a golfer.

We have long felt that golf clubs should prepare manuals for all new members—detailing the club rules, policies, etiquette of golf and what is expected of them as a club member. We don't think a novice should be permitted to go on the course without at least taking a basic set of lessons from the club professional. That's a pretty small price to pay for the lifelong privilege of belonging to a private golf club. And in this day and age it is a privilege.

GOLFERS ARE PEOPLE and therefore subject to all the human frailties. But like we said before, the payment of golf dues doesn't give any man the right to make his own ground rules.

Golf has its types like all the other sports but here are a few we would like to see banished to the Siberian Open:

Those fairway birds who fail to replace divots, rake sand traps and encroach on the putting greens with electric cars or pull carts.

Suffer lapses of memory with respect to club towels, clubs and other paraphernalia intended for the use of all members.

Leave blades in those free razors and leave uncapped bottles of shaving cream, hair tonic and skin lotions.

Conveniently forget to submit all scores to the handicap chairman.

The mathematically deficient who are unable to count beyond the fingers on one hand.

Those who never quite make it like visiting the club's dining room or cocktail lounge.

Husbands with 25 handicaps who give their wives playing lessons on the fairways. This kind of guy has to go!

Gilbert Leads Open In Canada

LONDON, Ont. (UPI)—Gibby Gilbert found his golf game in a slump lately, so he called his own personal "dial-a-lesson" service and the long-distance advice Thursday helped him to a course record 65 at the London Hunt and Country Club and the first-round lead in the $125,000 Canadian Open.

Gilbert, of Hollywood, Fla., led by one stroke over 1960 Canadian Open champ Art Wall and former Masters champ George Archer, both at 66.

Gilbert's round was seven strokes under par on the par 72 course, which played to 7,168 yards.

The top Canadian was Toronto native Gary Pitchford, who now plays out of the Bahamas, who was tied at 67, five under par, with John Kennedy, of Edgemont, Pa., in fourth place.

Bob Stone, of Independence, Mo., was another stroke back at 68, and nine players were bunched at 69, including three-time open champ Sam Snead, who was runnerup in 1969.

Tommy Aaron, the 1969 winner, had poor front nine, with a 42, and finished the round at 78, six over par.

Gilbert, the blond pro who won the Houston Champions tourney earlier this year and has won $39,000 on the 1970 tour, missed the cut at the Cleveland Open last week.

Worried, he picked up a phone and called long distance back to Hollywood, where home pro Joe Gerlach answered.

"He can visualize my game," said Gilbert. "It doesn't always help, but it makes me think better," he said.

The group of players at 69 included, besides Snead, Don Massengale, Kermit Zarley, Larry Hinson, Canadian Al Balding, Jim Jamieson, Canadian amateur Nick Weslock, Phil Rodgers, and Steve Oppermann.

Bradbury Hits 'Trick'

MONTICELLO The first hat trick of the 1970 season was performed at Monticello Raceway Thursday night by Fred Bradbury of Dayton.

Ambro Harold, a 5-1 choice in the morning line, captured the $4,000 fifth race, a handicap trot in the season's record time of 2:05 4/5. Ambro finished a head in front of Niagara Blaze and Dunbar.

The daily double combination of 1-4 paid $23.40. Patty May (Al Manzi) made it look simple in the first race, coasting home by 1½ lengths to return $6.60 to win. Hustling Thru, 9-5 choice, won the second race the eight hole by one and a half lengths to pay $35.80.

Bradbury wrapped it up with Torpay by a comfortable two-lengths margin for his first win of the season for a $12.60 payoff.

In other New York harness action, Belinda Dares won the featured ninth race at Saratoga, pacing the very muddy mile to an easy eight length victory in a very slow 2:16 4/5.

The victory was worth the first share of $1,800 to Belinda Dares and $9.40 to winning ticket holders.

Dancing Leigh was second and Yankee B Mac finished third. At Buffalo Raceway Flashy Flic was awarded first place in the featured $1,200 pace after For Zeno, the first finisher, was disqualified and placed sixth. For Zeno was charged with interference.

Three tracks were active in the southern part of the state including Historic Track in Goshen where the Grand Circuit headed for tonight's finale. Waltz Time won the featured event, a $15,854 pace for 3-year-old fillies.

Waltz Time claimed victory after a 2:04 1-5 mile finishing ahead of Bardot Hanover and Precious New Port the winners in the two elimination heats.

At Roosevelt Raceway, Clotina Hanover led all the way to win the $7,500 Pioneer Trot by a neck over Style Setter. Viscount Hanover was third.

The race was clocked in 2:01 1-5. Clotina Hanover paid $16.00.

Dear Abby

'Old-Fashioned' Guy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: You advised a flat-chested girl, "What nature has forgotten—stuff with cotton." That may be all right during the pursuit, but once they've agreed to matrimony, she should shed the artificiality. The poor guy may want a bosomy wife more than anything else in the world (an immature attitude, but many men are immature). The girl may have known this all along and deceived him with "falsies." If you think this is ridiculous, it isn't. I've seen it happen.

So on our wedding night when the bride is found to be wearing balloons full of jello, there's going to be trouble.

I agree, some things are better left untold, but when two people plan to enter a relationship as intimate as marriage, such "secrets" are bound to be found out.

I'm an old-fashioned guy and I don't believe in rehearsals in bed before marriage, but I do think that both parties should be completely honest about what is natural and what isn't before, as the young people say, the marriage is consummated.

DEAR TAFT: I find your "old-fashioned" attitude refreshing. However, not all girls wear falsies in order to deceive and entrap. (Some feel they look better in clothes with a few curves.)

No bride with a brain in her head would present herself as a truly bosomy babe right up to the wedding night, and then "deflate" herself—and her disappointed groom. But if she did, she deserves to be left "flat."

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I argue about one thing constantly. He says that if you love someone you don't have to show it. I would like your opinion.

DEAR KARLA: If by "showing it" you mean putting on a public demonstration, that doesn't mean a thing. One "shows love" by treating another with kindness, consideration and understanding.

DEAR ABBY: Backing up your reply to the mother who doesn't want her daughter associating with a little neighbor girl because of the behavior of that child's mother: Many years ago I tactfully suggested to my five-year-old son that it might be better if he didn't play with a five-year-old neighbor boy because that boy's homelife was miserable, he told outrageous lies, used extremely bad language, and his mother was "suspect," and so on. After listening, my son said, "But Mom, how will Billy ever learn to be a nice boy if no nice boys will play with him!" I was so ashamed! "A little child shall lead..."

MOTHER IN PORTLAND

DEAR ABBY: On Mother's Day I received a card, "TO GRANDMA ON MOTHER'S DAY"—signed "from Cindy and Jeff"—my two grandchildren, ages two and one. But my daughter (their mother) didn't remember me in a special way. Maybe I'm foolish for feeling put out, but Abby, Mother's Day is the day for children to get a bit sentimental about their mothers, and I've always enjoyed that holiday above all others. Don't get me wrong, I love my grandchildren, but they are not my children, and just because I happen to be a grandmother doesn't mean I'm no longer a mother.

"PUT OUT"

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

CARROLL RICHTER'S horoscope

FRIDAY, JULY 3

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day and evening to finish whatever has been pending. Also, be consistent in what you originally set out to do. You are able to gain a greater amount of security tonight and tomorrow. You need to get rid of whatever could possibly hold you back in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Now is the time to settle those household and family problems so that you have peace of mind. Make your home more attractive and charming, too. Add the color it needs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid trouble today; be careful on the road, in speaking, walking etc. Be sure that reports are accurate. Avoid being annoyed about them later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care you do not invest your means in the hope of making money fast, or you could regret it later. Don't rely on advice of business persons today. They are not thinking very clearly now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) There is some important matter for you to handle today, so don't become so immersed in the personal you forget everything else that is vital. Do whatever will please social attachments. Keep busy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You feel frustrated because you cannot act on some situation speedily, but if you get busy with other things while waiting, all will be fine. Be poised. Assist those who are in real need.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care you do not act sharply with friends who are doing things you do not approve of. Use that smile more and all will work out well. A scowl only ruins your chances of getting ahead faster.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try not to take any chances where your good name is concerned, since this is a particularly difficult day. Be loyal to higher-ups who are doing a good job but not getting any credit for it. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study new ideas carefully. Wait for a better day before you put them in operation. Steer clear of one who does not agree with your ideas and who criticizes you often. Be well dressed today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have to be most precise in keeping promises you have made and work you have agreed to do. Don't permit others to think you are superficial. Be happy at your work and all should go well with you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to please mate in whatever he or she expects you to do. Listen to what associates have to say and then you can get their approval for something you want to do. Stop being an instigator.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although you want to run off for fun, it is best you stick to the work you have to do. Be conscientious and you gain respect of associates. Be happy with mate tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although you want to enjoy yourself, be sure you don't take valuable time of others just to have company. Smile more and give a word of encouragement to others. Then you will get along just fine with everyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those emotional young people who, early in life, needs all the encouragement and appreciation possible. Otherwise, your progeny could become a sad-faced person others shun. Teach early to stand on own feet more and not rely so much on others. The nature then becomes a more positive one for success especially in the field of art in all of its forms.

SATURDAY, JULY 4

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you rely upon your hunches, this can be a most happy and pleasant day. Good for whatever concerns art, music, nature, beauty, color.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Keep busy having fun with kin today. Avoid an associate who could make trouble, if allowed to do so. Be sure to show family how devoted you are. Invite a good friend to your home this evening. Be happy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) It's time to go off to some new site, but don't go too far out of your own community. Much happiness is possible today. Forget work and concentrate on recreation and relaxation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to make your property more charming and valuable instead of spending a great deal of money on fun. An expert can give you the information you need, confidentially. Be especially devoted to mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Look for the understanding you seek from a charming individual, instead of relying on kin today. Do whatever you can to make yourself more attractive.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Home and family should be your greatest concern today instead of visiting friends. Discuss how to have more security and happiness in that important area of your life. Be kind with everyone.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put aside problems that have you upset and go out with friends for some relaxation. You may get some fine idea from them on how to solve them. Plan how to be more efficient.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Rely upon your hunches today and do not try to force things. This can be a most delightful day for you. Use better judgment than in the past. Show that you are patriotic today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do whatever will help you to understand better where you are headed. Be sure you are out early in the world of activity. Study new ideas more thoroughly before putting them in operation. Be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Talk over with good friends how to make your lives more successful and happy. Improve relationships now. Be sure you make new, important contacts. Show that you are an interesting and delightful person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A higher-up is not in a good mood today, so avoid this person now. Do some studying that will help you in your future work. See friends and relatives you like.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy with chores early; then do something patriotic. Show that you are a good citizen. Get together with associates at some mutually happy activity.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put aside those anxieties and do whatever will make you happy and give you a feeling of well being. Be more attentive to mate, too. This should be a banner day and evening for you, in every sense of the word. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who relies more on intuition than on judgment, since the hunches are unusually correct. Teach early to take time to meditate and permit the subconscious to go to work for him or her. The fields of music, art, the movies, TV, etc., are fine here. Have plenty of books around early so that your progeny reads a great deal.

SUNDAY, JULY 5

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a good day to gain the inspiration you need from higher sources to help make your fondest dreams come true. Do that which renews the proper spirit within you. Be happy with those you feel close to.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Enjoying yourself is in order today, provided you slant your creative urges in the right direction. Join with good pals who can give you happy moments. Listen to their ideas and suggestions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do whatever brings you closer to family. Get rid of that feeling that you are almost an outsider. Be sure you look into some new outlet that brings you more profit and happiness as well. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Out to the services that really inspire you today to achieve greater success and happiness in the future. Get into hobbies later with good friends and have an enjoyable time. Get to bed early this evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) "Think Big" should be your motto today, since you are very sharp and clear in your thinking at this time. Have a leisurely talk with a business expert today and gain fine ideas from this person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Stop being so full of pride. Get out and enjoy the companionship of others, in all walks of life. Give a party or accept an invitation to one. Something very fine can come of this, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Meditating on the worthwhile things of life is wise this morning. Also, make better plans for the future. Then get into amusements, with charming friends. Show you are an intellectual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do something nice for good friends and show that you are fond of them, but don't coerce them into doing something you want. Get away by yourself for a while and concentrate on what you want out of life. Be practical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to the ideas of persons who are experts in your own field so that you will know how to improve conditions later. Others resent your giving them advice today. Avoid doing so and all is fine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have an interest in new ideas; this is fine. Enjoying the company of persons whose background is different than your own is also recommended. Show others you are broad-minded. Stop picking on little things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find the information you need to aid in your present work and be sure to do what pleases others. If you are out-of-town, don't forget to write cards home. Gad about town tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Focusing your attention on associates is fine now. Get the right results. Do something to improve your health. Be sure to handle correspondence wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care of necessary chores right away. Improve wardrobe so that it is just right for a special affair.

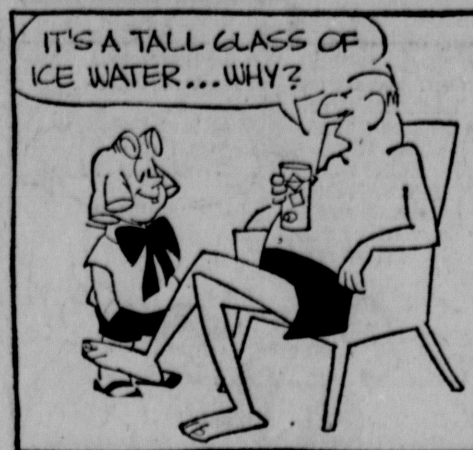

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people with good looks but a reticent manner. Encourage this child early and this life will be a happy one. Some discipline is necessary early otherwise it will be meted out more severely later by outsiders. This is an ideal chart for dealing directly with the public in one way or another. The field of selling is good here, as well as acting, speaking, etc.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Federal Count Testimony

McCormack...I'm Clean

NEW YORK (UPI) —House Speaker John W. McCormack testified in federal court Thursday he was unaware of any influence peddling going on at his Washington congressional office.

McCormack said during more than four hours of testimony in the conspiracy and perjury trial of his suspended administrative aide, Dr. Martin Sweig.

Only once did he ever suspect Sweig might have used his name without permission, McCormack said. This concerned a telephone call made to an Army colonel asking for a hardship discharge for a soldier.

Asked by U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour Jr. if he had pressed the matter, which came to light when the colonel wrote a letter to the speaker confirming the call, McCormack said, "I didn't go that far into it."

The speaker also said he knew nothing about three other calls which other officials testified were made to them by a man who identified himself as McCormack.

Altogether, 45 witnesses have testified on various episodes involving alleged use of power at prestige of McCormack's office by Sweig and Nathan Voloshen, a 20-year friend of the speaker's who has pleaded guilty to peddling influence from McCormack's office.

Voloshen, 72, a registered lobbyist, originally was indicted along with Sweig on charges of perjury and conspiracy to defraud the government, but he pleaded guilty before the trial began June 17, leaving Sweig to stand trial alone.

President Satisfied

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) —President Nixon is satisfied with progress of the Vietnamization program and reports by the Pentagon that American casualties have dropped dramatically in the last six months.

White House officials said that Nixon, who believes Vietnamization will prod Hanoi into meaningful peace talks, has new indications South Vietnamese forces are taking over a greater share of the combat burden.

They cited statistics showing U.S. casualties during the first six months of 1970 were the lowest for any six-month period in the last three and a half years — since 1966.

During the first six months of this year, South Vietnamese combat deaths were three and a half times those for the United States.

In his foreign policy "conversation" with three television network anchors Wednesday night, the President said:

"If the enemy feels we are going to stay there long enough to handle their own defense, then I think that they have a real good incentive to negotiate, because if they have to negotiate with a strong, vigorous South Vietnamese government, the deal they can make with them isn't going to be as good as the deal they might make now."

Pompidou: Peace Talk

PARIS (UPI) —President Georges Pompidou says a negotiated peace in Vietnam will come only when the United States voluntarily withdraws from Indochina.

Responding to questions Thursday at his third news conference since taking office 13 months ago, Pompidou discussed a number of subjects, including the Middle East crisis, the Vietnam War, the Common Market and a united Europe.

Relaxed and smiling through most of the one hour and 27 minute meeting with French and foreign newsmen, Pompidou raised his voice only when he spoke of Indochina.

"I cannot fail to repeat what I have already said before the United States Congress: That there will be no prospects for peace in Indochina until the day when the United States will have taken — themselves and voluntarily — the firm resolve to withdraw from Indochina," Pompidou said.

Pompidou also welcomed the appointment of Ambassador David K. E. Bruce as chief negotiator for the Vietnam peace talks being held in Paris.

Commenting on the Middle East crisis, Pompidou said all effort by the Big Four powers meeting in New York had been without great effect.

"The four must present a common peace plan, for only a common plan can be accepted by all sides. Any isolated plan presented by one nation is automatically suspected by one of the sides," he said.

Pompidou said France was not changing its policy of an arms embargo against Israel.

On the Common Market and its negotiations going on now with Britain for membership he said, "It is necessary to be in or out. Even if one is out, there are possibilities of accommodation." French sources said this was a reference to the associate membership idea that Britain has in the past refused.

Pompidou, who was speaking on the eve of his summit meeting with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, praised the German leader's efforts of rapprochement with Eastern Europe and said they were "in the general interest of Europe...all of Europe."

Pompidou said he foresaw a possibility of total European cooperation in the future.

"Personally, I think a European confederation possible and desirable," he said.

As he headed into the Fourth of July weekend, Nixon appropriately had on his desk a report from the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

The 30-member commission recommended that America's 200th birthday in 1976 be celebrated with special festivities in four major cities — Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and Miami. The report, to be released today, also suggests that Philadelphia be host to a major international exposition.

The President had no plans to participate in traditional ceremonies on Independence Day.

Employment Rate Dip

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The nation's unemployment rate fell last month for the first time this year, despite the addition of some 1.3 million workers to the jobless list.

This seeming paradox is because of the seasonal adjustments the Labor Department applies to the unemployment rate each month to account for deviations caused by such factors as harvest time, vacation periods and winter weather.

The biggest seasonal jolts to the unemployment rate come in September and June with the opening and closing of the school year. That's mainly why the seasonally adjusted jobless rate went down last month from 5 per cent to 4.7 per cent even though actual unemployment shot up from 3.4 million to 4.7 million.

Teen-agers getting out of school accounted for about 1 million of the 1.3 million persons added to the unemployment rolls in June. Some 2 million teen-agers joined the labor force last month, but only half of them found jobs.

Lottery Ceiling Reaches 195...May Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's draft lottery ceiling has risen to No. 195 through August and Draft Director Curtie W. Tarr says officials "don't anticipate that it will go much higher" for the rest of the year.

Tarr ordered local draft boards Thursday to add only five lottery numbers for August inductions.

The Selective Service director's announcement means that men holding numbers in the upper end of the "middle third" — somewhere around 210 to 240 — might escape the service.

He said an influx of low-numbered men, primarily college students who have lost their deferments, is replenishing the draft pool and "really helping our manpower situation."

The White House estimated at the time of the first lottery last December that the lowest third —men with numbers from one to about 120—would almost certainly be inducted.

It said men with numbers above 240 probably would not. Those with numbers in the middle range were left to wonder about their chances.

Last December's estimates were based on predicted manpower needs of 260,000 men. The Pentagon since has reduced that number to somewhere between 150,000 and 180,000.

Monthly draft calls have shown a corresponding downward trend with the August call of 10,000 the lowest of the year. Tarr also reaffirmed that local boards need not send men with numbers higher than 215 for pre-induction physicals.

That advice, repeated over the past several months, had been the only indication of how high on the lottery list the 1970 draft might go.

However, Tarr's statement Thursday generated speculation that even some of these men might not be called.

The anticipated peak number this year has no effect on men born in 1951 who received their draft lottery numbers Wednesday.

They will face induction next

George Washington Was Here in 1782; History Buffs Invited Next Week

HURLEY PATENTEE MANOR, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Waligurski, was built in 1747 around the original Dutch cottage constructed in 1691. This lovely Georgian stone country mansion belonged to the Cool family from the 17th Century until 1957.

Saturday, July 11 will mark the twentieth observance of Hurley, New York's annual "Stone House Day," when the village's privately owned colonial stone homes will be open to the public, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. True Dutch hospitality and colonial craft-work await visitors to the village, in the form of the "Country Fair" where gourmet cheeses, souvenir tiles, home-made baked goods and candies, Christmas items, toys, stuffed animals, and decoupage pictures will be offered. For the first time, demonstrations, unique to the village, will be presented. Robert McClaine, of Kerhonkson, will, by use of antique tools, hand-hew a ceiling beam from a large tree trunk; and Mrs. John Valentine, of Hurley, will provide a novel touch by making colonial-style candle-holders and sconces of tin, and engraving scenic views of the Hurley Reformed Church on aluminum trays.

Founded in 1661 by 15 Dutch and Huguenot families, Hurley boasts the largest single cluster of original stone colonial homes to be found in the United States. Endorsed as a National Historic Site by the U.S. Department of the Interior, Hurley is unique in that its homes, all privately-owned residences, lovingly preserved by their owners, two of whom are direct descendants of original settlers.

The first homes were crude slab-sided shelters, which were destroyed by marauding Indians two years later. Sturdier homes of native limestone set in puddled clay — much of it fossil-encrusted followed, and formed the nucleus of the village today.

Former Capitol

Hurley was the capitol of the State of New York in 1777, when the good burghers fled Kingston when it was burned by the British. General George Washington was accorded a reception here in 1782, on a rainy November morning. Regrettably, 'tis said that the good General sat, astride his horse, in the downpour, while Judge Ten Eyck, who delivered the oration, spoke from the shelter of a near-by porch! Even worse, the speech was in Dutch, of which Washington was unable to understand one word! The Dutch heritage is strong in Hurley, even today — and it is a matter of historical fact that Hurley was the last community in the state to cease speaking Dutch as its official language — in the 1860's!

From town houses with bullet-pierced shutters, and walls 18 inches thick, to farm houses with enormous fireplaces and hand-forged door latches, wells constructed on ballast bricks, bulls' eye glass, and flooring of "King's pine," (as boards more than 21 inches wide were known) — Hurley has something to pique every interest.

Here can be found the birthplace of Sojourner Truth — born a slave, on a dirt cellar floor, named Isabella, she was destined to tramp the country in the 1860's, pleading the cause of her people, from whence came her better-known name. This house, known as the Colonel Gerardus Hardenburg home, was built about 1750 on land originally granted by George II. Today, this lovely home is owned by Mrs. L. T. Schoonmaker.

The Hurley Reformed Church, with its simplicity of design, featuring swinging doors on its pews, was erected in 1853 — for a cost of $2,800! The parsonage, presently the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Schadeewald, contains a most unusual kitchen cupboard, said to have been used for storage of wood and vegetables, and also as a warm, close-at-hand sleeping niche for slave babies.

The dining room doors in the Dr. Richard Ten Eyck home, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Gaffken, boast bulls' eye glass, placed there to ward off the machinations of evil spirits! This home was also a stop on the "underground railway," helping escaped slaves to find freedom in Canada.

George Kent's "spy house" was the scene of the incarceration of a hapless British officer, who was captured while on a secret errand, and later hanged from an apple tree in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winter, owners of the Polly Crispell Cottage, found a "witch catcher" in their chimney when repairs were being made. As the home once belonged to a blacksmith, it is felt that this, too, was installed to prevent harm from befalling the smith as he plied his trade. The charming cottage was built in 1735.

Ancient Cemetery

Just off the main Street of the village is the ancient cemetery of the early settlers. Crude bluestone markers, bearing hard-to-decipher, hand-chiselled inscriptions tell a story of their own, bearing mute testimony to those whose final resting place they guard. The earliest recorded deaths occurred in 1715.

The Jonathan Elmendorf house is a fine example of a wealthy burgher's town residence. Presently owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobson, its stone walls are well over 18 inches thick, and the sturdy, hand-hewn beams to be seen are the originals.

Miss Margery Larson is the present owner of what was known as "Houghtaling's Tavern", the site of the reception given Washington by the village in 1782. When repair work was necessary to the foundation, it was discovered that this house is situated upon an old Indian mound—shells, bones and other artifacts were discovered in abundance.

After walking the two blocks of the Main Street of the village, guests may desire to partake of the cafeteria-style luncheon, served in the hall of the Hurley Reformed Church. Provided by the good cooks of Hurley, this is a popular spot—for excellent, but inexpensive dining. A feature of the day, for some years, has been the turkey and ham salad boats.

Shuttle buses will provide free transportation to the out-lying homes—with one scheduled to make the run every 15 minutes. Among the homes encountered on this route is the Houghtaling House, where the massive ceiling beams measure 22 feet by 16 inches. The lovely kitchen, with large fireplace, and original mantel, charmingly spans the centuries.

Another exception to the general style of architecture is the Abram Elmendorf home, built about 1780—it is of three-story English design. Many examples of colonial hardware are to be seen in this home, which is situated upon an old Indian encampment. Many of the artifacts taken from this property are now housed in the Museum of Natural History in New York. The old well in the rear of the home was made of ballast brick. Today's owners are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy.

Patentee Manor to Be Opened

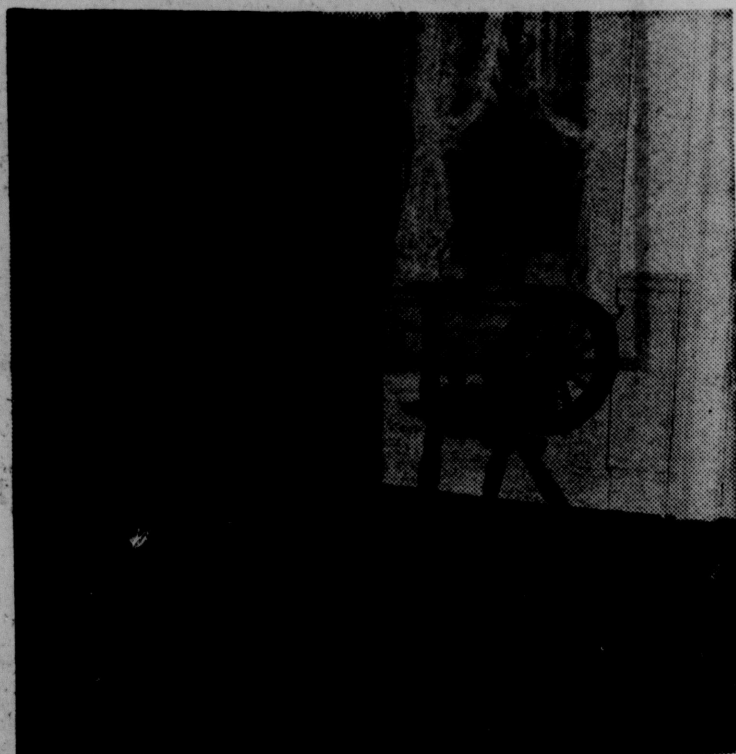

Open this year for the first time in many years, will be the "Hurley Patentee Manor", which was owned by the Cool family from the 17th century until 1957. The manor consists of its original Dutch cottage, built through several phases, about 1696, and the country mansion addition, constructed by Cornelius Cool in 1745. From 1700 to 1800 the manor was the hub of the Hurley Patent, a 12,000 acre land grant, which included all of present-day Hurley, and portions of five neighboring towns, extending from Woodstock, New York to New Paltz, New York. The architectural beauty, and authenticity of its restoration by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Waligurski, have been commended by Fred J. Johnston, noted authority on colonial homes, and consultant for nationally-known restorations.

So this, then, is Hurley—a sleepy little village whose citizens delight in dressing up in pantaloons, pinafores, Dutch lace caps, and sometimes, even antique wooden shoes, to entertain guests for its annual "walk through history", traditionally held on the second Saturday in July, rain or shine! Each home along the tour route is staffed by color-fully garbed hostesses, on hand to answer questions pertinent to that particular home, or to speak of Hurley history in general.

To reach Hurley, take the New York State Thruway to Exit 19, Kingston, turn right on Route 28, then right again, on Route 209 south, directly to the village of Old Hurley. America's "Stone House Community" awaits her visitors for this annual event, prepared to display not only her historic stone colonial homes, but her Dutch hospitality as well. "Stone House Day" is sponsored by the Hurley Reformed Church, and the proceeds are used for local civic and charitable endeavors in the village. Family rates are available.

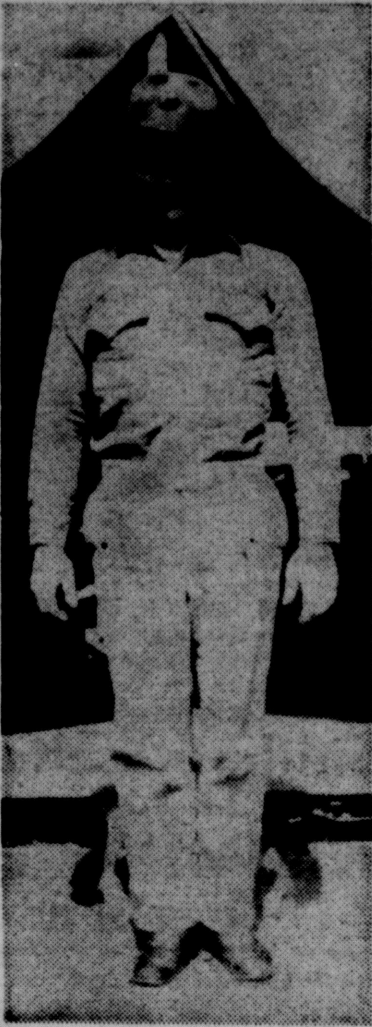

DINING ROOM DATES FROM 1690—The dining room of the Cornelius Cool home which is the oldest room in the house dating from 1690, shows excellent collection of Meissen china in the hutch cabinet.

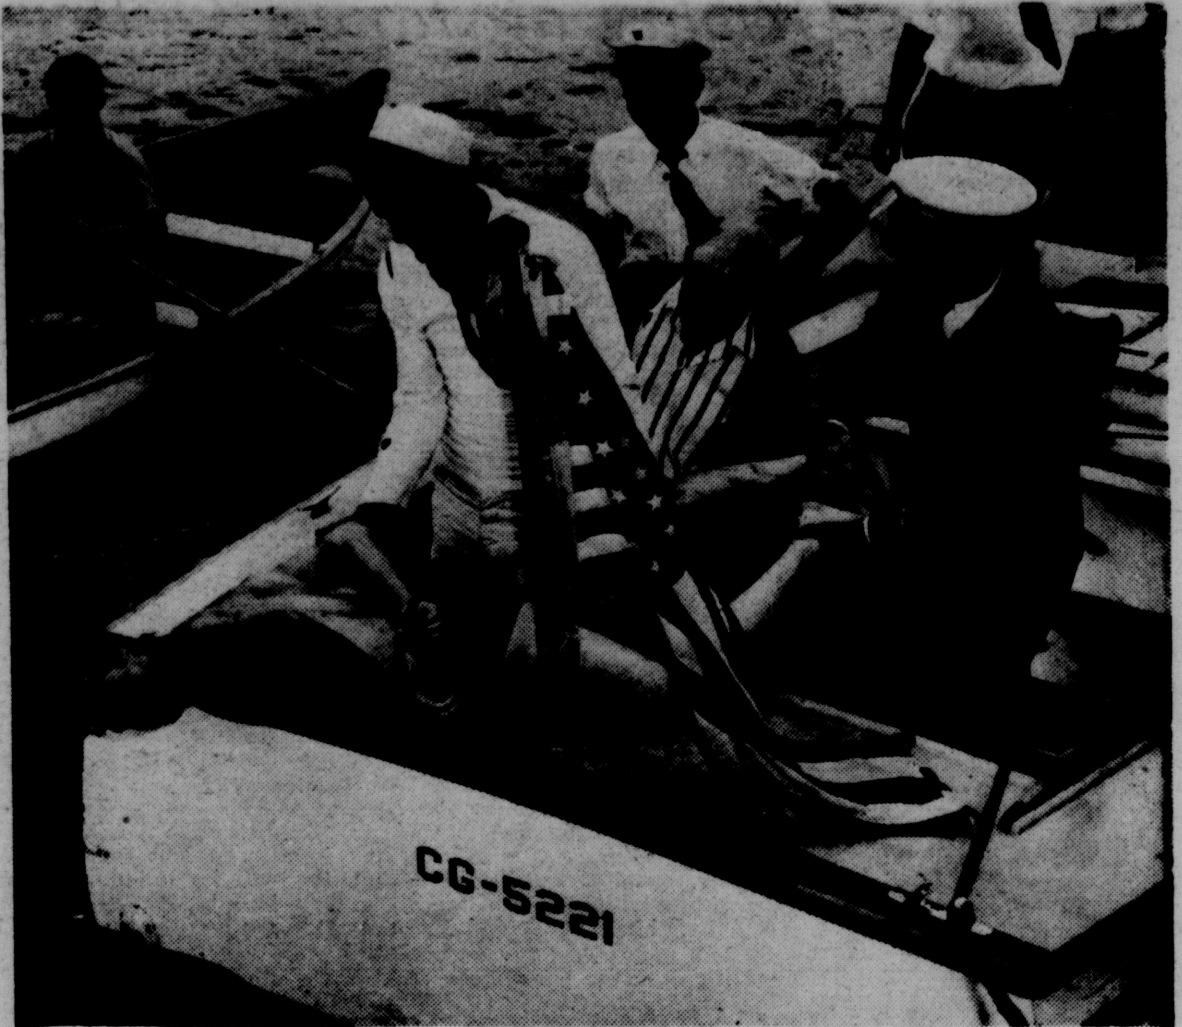

CUPBOARD CALLED "KAS"—In the Cornelius Cool home, presently owned by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Waligurski, the cupboard, known as a "kas", and the spinning wheel, shown in the front hall, date to the origin of the home.

HAULED FROM FLUSHING BAY—Aquatic star Al Melville, bound hand and foot, is hauled from Flushing Bay by Coast Guard after completing spectacular "Seal Stroke Swim" at New York World's Fair in 1939.

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

"The Great Mel," he was called a few decades ago. Mel being short for Melville, but "The Great" he had earned . . . the hard way.

A famed swimmer, expert marksman, and master horseman, Kingston's Albert J. Melville has created a reservoir of prime publicity for his home town during his lifetime along with acquiring quite a number of "firsts" in varied fields for himself. Known locally as the man who swam the Hudson with his hands and feet shackled, Al Melville introduced handcuffed-swimming to realm of water sports and climaxed his efforts with his unique role at New York's World's Fair Aug. 26, 1939 when he played host to millions by swimming Flushing Bay with his hands bound behind his back. His daring water feats have made many front page headlines.

Mel left school to join the U.S. Marine Corps when he was 15 years old and at 26 was the "youngest veteran in the U.S." while serving in Nicaragua in 1927 with the U.S. 52nd, Mounted Marine Corps, the only mounted outfit in the Marine Corps. Mel won vast distinction, being cited 22 times for bravery. He was awarded the Nicaragua Medal of Merit and Citation by the Nicaraguan president and, due to his conspicuous service, was entitled to Expeditionary Force Bar, Nicaragua Campaign Bar, and President Moncado Bar with Silver Star. The Marine "leatherneck" was one of first volunteers to leave Kingston during World War II, and later served in Merchant Marine in Atlantic and Pacific, receiving the Atlantic Medal for participation in World War II.

Trick Rider

It was while serving his country, he became an expert horseman, becoming one of the trick riders in his outfit. He mastered the art of using both rifle and pistol. At 25 paces he could shoot ashes off a cigarette. On rifle range of Kingston Municipal Auditorium he shot a Christmas ball the size of a quarter from the head of his friend Lou Glenn, firing the rifle upside down.

At the first promotion of the Lions Club, a benefit ball for blind children which was held at The Barn back in 1940, Al performed trick shooting, firing at live targets and offering a different sort of act than any ever seen around Kingston. Shooting the rifle upside down with the butt of it braced against his forehead, he was Kingston's answer to William Tell. A basketful of Marine Corps marksmanship medals attest to his skill.

After distinguishing himself in service, he joined Bill Cody's Wild West Show, and after that found time to develop the overhand breast stroke featured by world famous swimmer, Leonard Spence, who had appeared at William's Lake in Rosendale. Mel taught Spence the stroke.

The greatest swimmer ever developed in Kingston area, Mel's accomplishments date back to 1920 when he began winning ribbons in playground competition for fancy diving and distance swimming. His first daredevil attempt as an adult was in 1938 when he swam from Rhinebeck to Kingston with his hands tied behind his back with piece of clothes line, diving from old Transport Ferry and heading for Day Line dock at Kingston Point. Rivermen calculated he'd be carried off course by tide and wind up at East Kingston, but he finished at Kingston Point, none the worse from the experience. However, he was knocked unconscious when youth assisting him out of the water let his head hit dock. Many who gave the tide preference over Mel's swimming abilities, waited at East Kingston Area. When he didn't appear, onlookers thought he had drowned, but a police clerk revealed him very much alive taking a shower at the YMCA.

Ferries Salute

This swim led to many exhibitions along the Hudson. On his 20-minute water trip from Highland to Poughkeepsie, ferries stopped in midstream, blowing their whistles in salute, while passengers created their own special hulahaloo.

One of the most difficult experiences as an aquatic performer was a now-legendary day in his life when he accomplished his water trip from Beacon to Newburgh. Manacled by 'cuffs weighing a pound an one-half, he leaped into Hudson at dusk, the water choppy, with several thousand spectators in attendance. The rowboat accompanying him was detoured by tugboat and had to take another path which delayed it an' Mel en route. But he still made it in 44 minutes, 25 seconds.

Dick McCarthy in the Leader Sportscope wrote of another stunt which goes down in the books as one of the most daring nautical achievements. At DeWitt Lake the local swimmer with hands chained towed a canoe carrying the bathing girls behind him. McCarthy reported, "Kingston's Sir Walter Raleigh got the canoe across the lake and back in record time of 17 minutes, 10 seconds."

Although William "Red" Hill rode Niagara Rapids in barrel and received national acclaim, Kingston's swimming sensation accomplished something no other swimmer ever attempted: cutting waves in a style all his own. . . . seal fashion. Being an acquaintance of world-famous Mark Huling who operated the "Seal College", (later the site of Bob Teetsel's Barn which is now also demolished), friends wondered if Teddy-the-Seal learned to swim by watching Mel or vice versa.

(Next week: Concluding article in this two-part series)

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE—Volunteers of America and Joyce Schirrick Post 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, were among the many groups which benefited from Al Melville's novelty feats of endurance. Coated with grease and shackled with handcuffs so tight they cut ridges in his wrists, he swam across the Hudson making record time. On various occasions, he became tangled in eelgrass, handicapped by three-foot rollers, and smothered in darkness, making it necessary for onlookers to shine flashlights on the water for him to see. Pictured here with Al is former City Mayor Conrad Heiselman and children from Volunteers of America nursery.

Avery Family Paintings On Display at Jarvis Gallery

In March of this year, the Brooklyn Museum exhibited the paintings of Milton Avery. It was the Museum's first Avery show since the artist's death in 1965 and it was organized by the National Collection of Fine Arts.

Milton Avery paintings are important. So much so that TIME MAGAZINE devoted three pages to the late artist in its March 16th issue. Avery's paintings were described as "haunting," "great canvases that far from the casual and transitory implications of the subjects, have always a gripping lyricism."

Ulster County is privileged, indeed, to be given the opportunity to view Milton Avery works at JARVIS GALLERY in Woodstock beginning July 4 from 1-6 p.m. The show will be all inclusive for it will feature also works by his equally famous artist wife Sally and daughter March.

Milton Avery met Sally at an artist's colony in Massachusetts in 1925 and married her soon after. Through the ensuing year, according to the TIME article, Sally supported the family with her illustrations for the children's page of the Sunday New York TIMES Magazine.

freeing her husband to spend his days painting.

Milton Avery won greatest acclaim late in life. He was known as an artist's artist and his studio in New York became a gathering place for many newcomers. But his dynamic influence was transferred to his wife and daughter alike who are now recognized for their own tremendous talents.

Milton Avery's own credo was very simple. He said: "keep painting—day in—day out. Be absorbed by it. Hold on to the dream—try to make the great dream a reality." It worked for him and his family. During his lifetime, Avery had many one man shows and was recipient of many awards. He was known on both sides of the ocean. His awards included the Logan Prize from the Chicago Art Institute; $1,000 Prize from ART, USA; and the Ford Foundation Grant with repective exhibition at Whitney Museum of American Art sponsored by the American Federation of Arts.

Milton's wife Sally has equally fine credits. She has exhibited extensively in New York City and Florida. Her paintings were exhibited at JARVIS GALLERY in 1969 and in 1965, 1966 and 1967 she was featured at the Paul Kessler Gallery in Provincetown. The Wadsworth Atheneum Museum of Art in Hartford, Conn., in 1964 acquired one of her portraits of her late husband. She has won a number of awards for her water colors and oils including First Prizes at the Village Art Center in New York and Fellowships to the MacDowell Colony and Yaddo.

March Avery, the daughter, holds a BA from Barnard College and has been taking giant steps in the world of art. She has had one man shows at Waverly Gallery, New York, Agra Gallery, Washington, D. C., Fontana Gallery, Philadelphia, Pa., and Paul Kessler Gallery in Provincetown, Mass. March Avery has participated in shows at Village Art Center, New York, City Center Gallery, Golden Door Gallery, New Hope, Pa., and Reese Pailey Gallery in Atlantic City, N.J.

The Avery Family exhibit at JARVIS GALLERY on 90 Broadview Road in Woodstock will be unique and should not be missed. The show opens July 4th weekend and will be at the Gallery for the rest of the month.

Public is invited. There is no admission charge.

A Musical Family Is on the Move Again

By LEI

Bob Dylan shopped there. So did Jimi Hendrix. So did a harried mother looking for a harmonica for her son, and a gum-cracking junior miss buying the latest single by the Archies.

For the past 12 years, almost anyone in the Hudson Valley with any interest in music has been a customer at Abrams Music Store. Now, in a musical landmark for the area, the well-known music store has moved recently to a new location in the heart of Kingston, at 302 Wall Street, across the street from its present site. For the owners, Mac Abrams, and his attractive wife, Gussie, this, the third move for the store, fulfills a hope of several years. The Abrams have purchased the entire building into which they moved, and now they'll have the room to work on all the musical projects they've considered, but had to postpone in the past.

The Abrams opened their first small store in Kingston in July of 1958. The tiny music store, located at 88½ John Street, soon had teenagers, musicians, and record collectors wearing out the sidewalk up to the door. In addition to a top-notch collection of records spanning the then current favorites of Elvis and Van Cliburn, and an extraordinary selection of musical instruments from ukeleles to drum sets, the store also featured the experience and competence of a couple to whom music was more a way of life than a business.

On Theatrical Circuit

Mac Abrams has been a musician all of his life. A talented percussionist, he played such instruments as drums, timpany, and xylophone on the New York theatre circuit for decades, and also taught percussion. Additionally, he plays trumpet, and participated for five years in the New Paltz Symphony Orchestra.

He met and married Gussie 32 years ago in New York City, where he lived until he came to Kingston in 1952. During the family's first years in Kingston, he worked at Herzog's Hardware Store, while moonlighting as a percussion teacher. Noting that sometimes his students had to search as far as New York City for special percussion equipment, he became convinced there was a need in Kingston for a quality shop featuring the best in both regular equipment and records, and also the out-of-the-ordinary. There wasn't much room in that original store for all they hoped to carry, but if it wasn't in their stock, the Abrams knew where it could be ordered promptly.

In August, 1967, the store was able to move into its well-known "shop with the pink front" at the corner of John and Wall Streets. Finally, it could carry in stock bulky amplifiers, drum sets, and organs. There was also room at the new location to give music lessons on the premises. As nearby Woodstock became a mecca for the new breed of musician, the shop developed a new attraction for teenagers.

During his retreat in Woodstock, Bob Dylan was a regular customer at the store, to the delight of any of his fans who happened to come in during his unannounced visits. Tim Hardin, Jimi Hendrix, and the Butterfield Blues Band were among the many other musical idols shopping at the store. The Abrams always respected the privacy of their noted customers, and to this day Mac Abrams maintains diplomatically that he and Mrs. Abrams sometimes didn't recognize the famous music makers themselves. The well-known are entitled to make their musical purchases with as little fuss as the high school student choosing a guitar pick, they feel.

In addition to their busy trade over-the-counter, Abrams operates a unique phone-and-mail-order service for those unable to visit the store in person, and this service is one of many they hope to expand in their new location. Their motto is, "No order too difficult," and they engage in some major detective work trying to unearth copies of old records, sheet music, and song folios.

Mac Abrams and his two sons, Allen and Bruce, were even more busy than usual as they worked with their enlarging staff preparing the new location. "Ready or not, we're moving in July 1," owner Abrams declared, and at the rate the new store progressed, it was well on the way to completion by that date. Later, when the finishing touches are applied, a grand opening is scheduled. Vastly larger than the current store, it is handsomely decorated in rich shades of crimson with natural wood trim; has plenty of room for additional racks of records, equipment, and sheets music.

In addition to continuing "business as usual," and working with the construction and stocking of their new location, the Abrams family is still finding time to make music. The head of the family, a member of Local 215 of the Musicians' Union, will be participating in the Union concerts at Kingston's Academy Green as usual this summer. The couple's younger son, Bruce, was discharged from the Army this month after serving as percussionist with the 26th Army Band. Bruce will be leaving again this fall to take the music course at the University of Hartford. Allen, the older of the two Abrams' boys, and a Vietnam veteran, is participating very actively in planning the new facilities, and still finding time to devote to his hobby of auto racing. On Father's Day, Allen brought home a trophy he won in a Canadian race. The occasion was cause for a triple celebration—it was also Mr. Abrams' birthday!

Now and Future Home

Abrams Music store incorporated last month, and it seems certain that the unusual enterprise will be going even further than it has up to the present—although hopefully, they won't be expanding out of their new building for a great many years to come!

The new building at 302 Wall Street may very well be a particularly important address in the music world. At the present, it will house, in addition to the store itself, expanded office facilities and several professional teaching studios for the lessons in percussion, guitar, and accordion now available on the premises. Plans for further expansion of services are reserved for the well on the way to completion. Right now moving those amplifiers out of the basement and across the street, and locating a needle for a customer's out-of-production record player, while being charming to the eight-year-old girl buying a record tote and advising a young member of a teen band on his choice of a new guitar, are problems enough. The pounding of hammers at the new building can be heard faintly in the store, and to the musical Abrams family, the sound has a music all its own!

Name Changed

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new one-hour drama series that ABC has been calling "Dial Hot Lin" is now known as "Matt Lincoln", after the leading character. Vince Edwards has the role of a practicing psychiatrist. The program will be seen at 7:30 p.m. Thursday beginning Sept. 24.

MUSIC MOVES THE MASSES, we are told, and—as this photo illustrates— it also moves landmarks. Heading across Wall Street with music stands and instruments in tow (L-R) are Mrs. Mac Abrams, Scott Swan and Mac Abrams. They're making moving music for the final time as they shift the inventory of Abrams' Music Store from the pink fronted shop at John and Wall Streets to larger quarters across Wall at No. 302. Is There Need to Heal Soul?

By LEI

Perhaps it's symptoms of the so-called "communication gap," that groups with a gripe tend to hassle about it among themselves instead of speaking out to those who could remedy the situation. Or maybe they speak out and find that nobody is listening to their wavelength.

A good example is the fact that very few people who are not either black musicians, or in exceptionally close touch with the soul music bag, know that there is a widespread belief that soul music and blues are in trouble. And the problems are blamed on radio program directors, fan magazines, and other American tastemakers.

Perhaps the biggest proof that they could have a valid point is the fact that many people will point to recent hit lists to prove them wrong. Soul is amply represented, it would seem, by such artists as Freda Payne, the Temptations, the Five Stairsteps, the Delfonics, Stevie Wonder, and Marvin Gaye.

Black musicians feel that this represents only the smallest tip of the iceberg, and that there is infinitely more to their music than Mowtown. They mention lack of exposure of recent hits by James Brown, Aretha Franklin, the Impressions, Little Richard, Ike and Tina Turner, Smokey Robinson and the Miracles and Melba Moore. When James Brown was grinding out jive to jump around to, he had his share of hits on the list, but his latest, "Brother Rapp," has made very few hit lists. Its radio exposure has been almost entirely on stations serving a primarily black audience. Those stations don't have the Beatles on their Top Ten, but they have the Flaming Ember and the Lost Generation. You haven't heard of them? Good reason why—outside of soul stations, they can rarely get airtime.

Some argue that most don't care for soul music, except for the occasional rhythm number. This statement is refuted by others who feel that since these teens are never exposed to soul, real blues, and the basic rock'n'roll, they never have a chance to develop a taste for it.

Many black musicians become bitter when they discuss the current "rock and roll revival," or "return to rhythm-and-blues." Janis Joplin, the Credence Clearwater Revival Canned Heat, Joe Cocker, the Band, and others who have had their part in the revival are dismissed as imitators—usually talented, accurate imitators, but still imitators. White imitators of black music.

They mention black musicians who have a record that sat collecting dust until it was "covered—" that is, also released by another artist with major radio, television, and magazine coverage. Then the original version would receive some sales as "another version of the hit."

The situation has continued for some time—the musicians point out that the current teens, the "golden age of rock and roll" is synonymous with Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, Dion, Roy Orbison, Carl Perkins and others. All these singers are still active musically—some have current hits. But the great black singers of those days are a hungry lot—Chuck Berry, Fats Domino, and Frogman Henry are among the lucky ones who have survived 15 years and are eating on the royalties from white renditions of the songs they wrote. They also sang and recorded them, but that is forgotten. Old Gold radio shows play the Beatle version of "Roll Over Beethoven," but they all-too-often forget the original version by Chuck Berry.

Soul artists are accurate in the observation that the situation forms a vicious cycle—radio stations won't play records without sales and popularity, but without airtime and other exposure, the records can't capture public interest.

Since teens are major record consumers and trendsetters, they can help equalize the situation. Those interested in rock and soul should look beyond the hit lists to records played on soul radio stations, records borrowed from friends and underexposed new releases by well-known names in soul. If they find a good new sound while experimenting with off-the-beaten-track releases, they should bring it to the attention of their local radio stations, record columns, and favorite music magazines.

Whatever the reason, America is missing a vital part of her musical heritage. With thousands of records played every day, there should be room for all shades of blue, from Johnny Winter through Big Bill Broonzy, and for all the sounds of soul.

Youth in the News

Fourth of July Holiday weekend time finds youth in the News still catching up with those bright young Ulster County students who made their mark on the academic scene.

Among those hitting the high honors list at State University College at Fredonia is Cheryl Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin J. Thomas of 1,000 Decker Street, Sunset Park, Town of Ulster. A junior, she earned a 3.8 average in the spring semester.

JoAnn Whalen of Plattsburgh and Jean Dixon of Kingston both made the dean's list for the spring semester at State University at Albany. JoAnn, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whalen of Plattsburgh, formerly of Kingston. Jean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dixon of 90 Second Avenue, this city. Both girls completed their junior year and will be members of the Class of 1971 in the fall.

A Kingston student was among the 262 named to the dean's list for the spring 1970 semester at St. Francis College, Loretto, Pa. He is Andrew Cook of 1 Burgevin Burgevin Street, Kingston. A junior majoring in philosophy, Cook earned a 3.5 average.

Stanley Longyear of the Class of 1971 at Norwich University, Northfield, Vt. earned dean's list grades during the second semester.

To qualify for the dean's list at the Vermont military college a student must attain an academic quality point average of at least 3.0, the equivalent of a B grade in all subjects.

He was also initiated into Epsilon Tau Sigma, the academic honor society at Norwich University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Longyear of Woodstock.

Spring semester dean's list of Ithaca College released this week includes two Ulster County students and one from just over the line in Sullivan County. Joseph Moriello of New Paltz a junior majoring in speech and Audrey Joan Moss of Kingston a sophomore majoring in German were among the top 10 per cent in their respective classes. Also listed was Steven John Misner of Woodbourne a junior majoring in history.

Hangout Hangs Up Shingle

27-THE DAILY FREEMAN, JULY 3, 1970

KINGSTON The Hangout is open, and ready for summer business.

The newest teen center in town opened last night at St. Joseph's School, Wall Street, and will continue to operate through the month of July.

Designed for high school members of the parish the Hangout features informal activities and recreation from 5 to 11 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

A snack bar offers refreshments. The gym will be open for basketball and there are pool and ping pong tables for other sports. For those of a quieter bent television and discussion areas are provided.

The Hangout is a membership club with dues and a nominal fee for admittance. Those wishing to join may pick up membership cards from the rectory any day or contact members of the Hangout committee.

Tom Ryan is chairman; Ellen Abernathy, assistant chairman; Bill Powers and Jim Cranston of the membership committee; Mary Gaffney and Joe Conlin, planners.

Continuation of the summer fun program will depend on interest and participation so steering committee members urge all interested students in grades 9 through 12 to come on down to the Hangout.

New Paltz— Teams Ahead

NEW PALTZ Summer school classes are underway at New Paltz High School. Sessions in personal use typing and driver education started this week.

However the echoes of regular school activities can still be heard through the corridors. Team selections and awards figured in the final activities of the spring semester.

Looking ahead to a successful season next fall are members of the New Paltz High School Drill Team for 1970-71. Selected at recent tryouts were Susan Althenn, Barbara Atkins, Linda Clearwater, Jeannie Coffarelli, Carolyn Fischer, Michelle Frantum, Jane Roach, Linda Ruiz, Terry Soule, Debbie Thompson.

Another wrap up activity at the end of the school year saw election of Library Assistants officers for the coming year and presentation of awards to those who served the organization throughout the year.

Phyllis Montanye heads the slate as president. Other officers are Kirby Montanye, vice president; Dawn Kerrigan, secretary; Holly Hornwell, treasurer.

Awards were made as follows:

Certificates for one year of service: Laurie Barclay, Carolyn Binninger, Debbie Bostrup, Brad Burchell, Jean Coffarelli, Cathy Decker, Ann Dixon, Carol Dixon, Carolyn Watson, Marilyn Dodd, Evelyn Frizzell, Kathy Gallagher, Gail Gundersen, Karen Karsten, Dawn Kerrigan, Wayne Otis, Billie Ann Schautz and Robert Werlau.

Pins for two years of service: Holly Hernwall, JoAnn Hopper, Ann Kaelin, Phyllis Montanye, Judy Rhodes, Philip Weaver, Sue Widing, Lucy Taylor.

Tie-clips for three years of service: Kirby Montanye and Peter Harp.

Alfred Smiley and Mrs. Ruth Frampton were supervisors.

The New Paltz Central High School Girls Softball Team can look back on a most successful season and forward to repeat performance next year. The team took first place and were undefeated in the Ulster County Athletic League. At the UCAL banquet at Onteora they were presented with the league trophy.

Girls who played their way to victory were Edith Atkinson, Mary Jane Baumgartner, Arlene Carroll, Candy Cleveland, Judy Cole, Andrea Coy, Joan Donahue, Marion Finklestein, Judy Gallagher, Barbara Pfaff and Mary Robertson.

Play of a different sort meant victory for fifteen high school musicians at semester's end.

A 5B rating was earned by and ensemble consisting of Andrea Diven, bassoon; Carol Ann Harp, oboe; Patty Schoonmaker, flute and Alex Stider, clarinet at the 1970 NYSSMA Festival in Colonie.

Also achieving a 5B rating was the clarinet duet presented by Mary Robinson and Alex Stier.

Instrumental soloists and their ratings are Mark Schreiber, 6C; Andrea Diven, 5B; Carol Ann Harp, 5C; JoAnn Hopper, 5B and Jeanine Coutant, 5B, all piano.

Debbie Kruzansky 6A and Patty Schoonmaker, 5B, flute; Mary Robertson, 4B clarinet.

Vocal soloists were Tom Mayer, 6A, Debbie Weston and Mary Robertson, festival.

According to New York State School Music Association ratings Grades 5 and 6 are most difficult and A ratings are tops.

Local scholarships were awarded as follows:

Patricia Clarke, Stephen Davis, Debra Denkesohn and John Hall (Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund); Debra Denkesohn, Jo Ann Hajek, Nancy Lewis, Lana Slater, Myra Sussman and Steven Zwick (Rondout Valley Teachers Association); Brian Davis (Bank Brothers Scholarship); and Debra Denkesohn (Irving Gilman Award). Several smaller awards (under $100) were also won by 1970 graduates.

The Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund recently received contributions from the class of 1970 of Rondout Valley Central High School and from the Rondout Valley Middle School PTA. The class of 1970 presented a check for $150 to the fund upon graduation; the class presented a like amount the Rondout Valley Teachers Association Scholarship Fund.

A check for $35 was given to the fund on behalf of the Middle School PTA by its treasurer, Mrs. Ann Feinberg. In turning over the check, Mrs. Feinberg noted that it was an increase over last year's gift of $25, adding that the PTA hoped to increase its contribution still more in the future.

The fund, the only all-citizen group in the area awarding scholarships to deserving RVHS graduates, welcomes contributions, large and small, from individuals, organizations or business. All gifts are, of course, tax-deductible. The only other source the fund has for scholarship monies is the annual fund-raising dinner held each fall.

With contributions such as this the continuing scholarship program for Rondout Valley students is assured. When classes resume in the fall it is hoped that qualified students will work toward these goals.

3 Area Girls Attend Listen People Parley

KINGSTON Conference time has started for area teens now that school is out for the summer.

Three girls from Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts attended a Senior Conference, Listen People sponsored by Mid-Island Council of Girl Scouts, Inc.

The girls were Rhonda Latz, Port Ewen; Gina Torre, Shokan and Barbara Culver, New Paltz. Accompanying the girls was Mrs. Susan Lovitch, Field Adviser for the Council.

The conference was held at the State University Agricultural and Technical College at Farmingdale, the oldest public college on Long Island, which offered a homey, relaxed atmosphere in which the girls could conduct this all important conference.

The theme of the conference was communication, as reflected by its title Listen People. There were forums on the Generation Gap, Communication Without Words, Trouble on Campus, U.S. Image Abroad, Religion — Changes and Conflicts, How to Communicate with the Uncommunicative and others.

A banquet on Saturday night as well as a fashion show featuring McCalls patterns, a Patch Ceremony and a hootenanny gave the girls a chance to get acquainted with each other and to offer Girl Scouts from many different Councils the opportunity of renewing some old friendships and making some new ones.

Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts is a member agency of Ulster County Community Chest.

JOHN HAMMOND

Monday Music Festival Series

The Woodstock Playhouse announces the first in its Monday Music Festival Series with the appearance of John Hammond, famous guitarist-singer, on July 6th at 8:40 p.m. Hammond, well-known for the blues sung in the fascinating old tradition of such unforgettable singers as John Lee Hooker and the more recent B.B. King, has performed throughout the United States including New York and Chicago. He recently appeared at Greenwich Village's Gaslight Cafe where, accompanying himself on both guitar and harmonica, he worked his way through a carefully selected repertoire which alternated from fast-paced blues-rock to slow and easy nostalgic numbers. Following John Hammond will be Van Morrison on July 13th and on July 27th Martha Schlamme and Alvin Epstein will present an evening of songs by Brecht-Weil. Others scheduled for the season are Dave Van Ronk, Happy and Artie Traum, and "Mr. Bojangles" Jerry Jeff Walker who are slated to appear August 10, 17 and 24th respectively, as well as "Mother Earth." Group discounts are available. For reservations and information call or write the Woodstock Playhouse, P.O. Box 268, Woodstock.

Jersey Kids Score

The Kearney kids of Berona, N.J., are making quite a good thing out of television. Eileen, 11, has been signed for a term contract for NBC's daytime serial, "The Doctors," to play Greta, daughter of the program's Matt and Maggie. This follows numerous video commercials and other programs. Her two brothers, Michael and Mark, recently had important roles on the NBC special of its American Rainbow series, "Boston Spy Party," and Michael was in the later "Inside World of Outer Space" of the same series.

Area Artists in Concert

In addition to national recording talent such as Skeeter Davis and Little Jimmy Dickens, the producers of Hidden Valley Country Concert, to be held Saturday and Sunday at Whiteport Road, Kingston, announced the signing of a number of well known country-western artists from the Hudson Valley area. The program, which will present continuous music both days from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m., will feature five local acts plus three national stars each day. Local artists appearing on July 4th are: Tex Larabey (WKNY-Kingston), Dave Ferris and The Wheels (Poughkeepsie), The Country Brothers (Syracuse), The Anderson Family (Albany), and Billy Bell and Leigh Ann Lee (Suffern). On July 5th: Josie Lou WGHQ-Kingston), The Golden Nuggets (Newburgh), Smokey Green (Glens Falls), Dusty Miller and His Band (Amsterdam), and Tex Larabey. Sharing the master of ceremonies spot will be three well-known radio personalities: Barry Frank (WEEW-Albany), Ted Jones (WSPK-FM-Poughkeepsie), and Earl Thomas (WBAZ-Kingston).

Hidden Valley Recreation Center, sponsor of the concert, is a 235 acre outdoor recreational complex situated on a mile-long lake four miles south of Kingston, off Route 32. This concert will be the first of a planned series through which the management of Hidden Valley hopes to combine the wholesome family picnic-swimming outing with fine entertainment.

Mari Galleries Open Saturday

The Mari Galleries at 120 Tinker Street, Woodstock, will open July 4th with an exciting show of Philip Fox, entitled "Hope, Spiritual and Propitious". Mr. Fox has been a muralist for the last 15 years and has lived 10 of those years in New York City, after graduating from the Cleveland Institute of Art. He believes "we call upon the creative Spiritual Power within us and are then guided by it in our work and daily lives. My works are efforts to make graphic examples of this cosmic and spiritual force." The show will run through the summer.

Novics HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — William Baldwin, 22-year-old Houston native who has never acted before, will make his screen debut in MGM's "Brewster McCloud."

Completes Scoring

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Neal Hefti completed scoring MGM's "The Moonshine War" which stars Patrick McGeehan and Richard Widmark.

Declaration of Independence Signers Forgotten Men?

One hundred and ninety-four years ago 56 men literally risked a noose around their necks to sign a provocative and radical document, the Declaration of Independence. Most Americans can quickly identify John Hancock, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams as signers, but who were the other colonial patriots who committed this rash act? And what happened to them?

Were they typical stereotyped revolutionaries, politicians, or radicals? World Book Encyclopedia researchers have come up with an approximate composite profile. The average signer would, incongruously, resemble a lawyer, a farmer, a mechanic, an Ivy League graduate, a school drop-out, a clergyman, and a family man.

Most signers had little in common aside from their passionate belief in political freedom and independence from British Crown rule. Personally, they varied occupationally, economically, religiously and psychologically. Professionally, their most common law, more than half belonged to that profession. But thirteen were farmers, five doctors, two were mechanics, one was a stone mason, and one a minister.

The majority were well educated, even by today's standards. Harvard, Princeton, and William and Mary Colleges were well represented. Ironically, the most historically famous signer, Benjamin Franklin, was an elementary school drop-out. He went to work at the age of ten after only two years of formal education and eventually became one of the intellectual giants of his era.

One common trait shared by the signers was a penchant for fatherhood. Collectively, they sired 325 children almost six apiece a feat which should rank them among the first Americans to generate the American population explosion even before we became a nation.

Their average age was 44. Edward Rutledge, at 27, was the youngest. Benjamin Franklin was the senior signer at 70. Charles Carroll, who always signed his name "Charles Carroll of Carrollton" to distinguish himself from a raft of other Carrolls around at that time, was the last signer to survive. He died 56 years later.

Ethnically, the signers were for the most part natives of the American colonies and of Anglo-Saxon descent, though three were natives of Ireland, two of England and one of Wales.

One of the most interesting signers was a man with the engaging but misleading name of Button Gwinnett. Button, however, was anything but cute. Little is known about his early life but there is enough biographical documentation to tab him as "the most picaresque but courageous man among his 55 compatriots."

From his boyhood in England Gwinnett urged to lead an army as a general. Impatient to achieve this, he left England at an early age and settled first in Charleston, South Carolina then Savannah, Georgia.

He was a merchant and a plantation owner who eventually served in the Georgia Assembly and the Continental Congress. After signing the Declaration of Independence he returned to Georgia and for a brief period became acting governor. He aspired to the post of brigadier general of troops raised in Georgia so much so that he was killed in a duel with General Lachlan McIntosh, resulting from a mutual rivalry over the matter.

Strangely enough, Gwinnett—the least prolific writer among the signers was most in demand among those who collect historic documents and signatures. His writing commanded a collector's price of $50,000. The signers' handwriting has been studied by the International Graphoanalysis Society, the professionals in the field. Their conclusion is that the signers were far from "plain" people. Some revealed flamboyant natures, others a flair for showmanship; but most were revealed as "analytical thinkers," according to the graphoanalysts.

Orthodox Church Unity

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastern Orthodox Christianity, globally allied but externally divided in this country into 11 different national branches tied to mother churches in the old-world East, seems headed toward independence as a unified, self-governing church.

It's a tense, shaky process, but new signs of it showed up this week. It would bring about America's fourth largest denomination, totalling close to 6 million members, exceeded only by United Methodists, Southern Baptists and Roman Catholics.

"The time has come for it," says Archbishop Iakovos, the warmly affable but forceful head of the 2-million-member Greek Orthodox Church in the Americas, the largest and most prestigious of the Eastern bodies.

"We feel the pressures for it within and without," he added. "If we postpone a solution, we lose all we possess in leadership and guidance of the people. Someday soon, we will either be one or none at all."

But it's a volatile undertaking, its steps sometimes threatening new rifts, and involving long-time rivalries abroad.

Since last spring, it had looked as if Russian Orthodoxy, the 800,000-member second largest group, had seized the initiative in the effort by getting the Moscow Patriarch to grant it autonomous status, the first major Orthodox branch in America to achieve it.

But new, somewhat superceding forces were at work.

The Russian action had implied a bid to other Orthodox churches to seek permission to rally together in the new self-governing American church.

But it also nettled their feelings, and stirred old frictions in inter-Orthodox relationships.

Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople (modern Istanbul), Orthodoxy's spiritual primate and "first among equals" of all Orthodox bishops, sent a scolding letter to the Moscow Patriarch, saying the unilateral action could wreck joint proceedings.

Following up that rebuke, Patriarch Athenagoras' personal American deputy, Archbishop Iakovos, this week unveiled a broader, bolder move for an autonomous, unified American Orthodoxy, tactically blanketing the Russian church's head start.

He disclosed that the Standing Conference of Orthodox Bishops, including leaders of all the American branches, and of which he is chairman, had petitioned Patriarch Athenagoras for authorization to turn the conference into a provisionally governing synod of all American Orthodoxy.

"It would provide a unifying force and eventually an autonomous synod governing their destinies," he said.

Such authorization would require collective action by a Pan-Orthodox Congress, including leaders of mother churches in the East and Middle East, called together by Patriarch Athenagoras.

Fair Street Pastor Feted At Farewell

KINGSTON
The ladies of the Women's Guild for Christian Service of the Fair Street Reformed Church were hostesses Sunday afternoon at a reception given in honor of the Rev. Edward C. Coon and Family.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Coon and their three daughters greeted friends and members of the congregation; many came from his home-church in Poughkeepsie, where he grew up as a boy. Also included were members of both their families from Poughkeepsie.

Area clergymen of all denominations stopped by to wish the Coons well, as did representatives of the Rotary Club, of which the Rev. Mr. Coon is past-president, the Kingston Area Council of Churches, of which he is retiring president, and many other organizations with which he has been affiliated during his term as pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

The Rev. Mr. Coon was recently called to be senior pastor of the Whittier Presbyterian Church in Whittier, Calif. He will assume his duties as of Aug. 1.

Area Pastor At Sessions

BLOOMINGTON

The Rev. Richard E. Lake, pastor of the United Reformed Church, Town of Rosendale has been attending a number of pastoral counseling training sessions during recent weeks.

He and Mrs. Lake just returned from a marriage communications laboratory in Chicago sponsored by the Reformed Church in America. The training program covered preparation of ministerial couples to lead marriage and family enrichment programs in their local areas.

The pastor also attended a five-day residence workshop in pastoral counseling at Mt. St. Mary's College, Newburgh, sponsored by the Iona Graduate School. Previous to that he was involved in a 12-week one-day-a-week, seminar at the Albany Psychiatric Center in ministerial counseling program dealing with various crisis of life.

A Warm Welcome Awaits All Holiday Visitors in the Kingston Area!

DEAN MARTIN is just one of 13 big name stars in Airport, a whale of a film now playing at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre. Based on the widely read, best selling novel, it's loaded with suspense, excitement, romance, tragedy (not necessarily in that order) and has been drawing fantastic crowds at each performance. Others in the cast include Burt Lancaster, George Kennedy, Dana Wynter, Van Heflin, and Helen Hayes.

MOVIES

BASEBALL BUFF—Good grief, look who's a movie star! Charlie Brown gets ready to begin another baseball season as the world-famous characters from "Peanuts" created by Charles M. Schulz cavort on the big screen in their first motion picture, "A Boy Named Charlie Brown," now playing at the Lyceum Theatre in Red Hook and Hyde Park Drive-In Theatre.

Television

"SESAME STREET" teaches the letter "J"—and all other letters of the alphabet to 3, 4 and 5 year-olds through the entertainment-education process. Seen locally on Channels 13 and 17 at 11:30 a. m. and again at 4:30 p. m., the program won out by a landslide vote as television's Show of the Year. It will continue right through the summer with repeats.

Miss America Pageant Back for Sixth Season

Finals of the Miss America Pageant will be aired by NBC Sept. 12. Bert Parks will serve as master of ceremonies for the 16th year.

The National Geographic Society's series of special documentaries will be back for its sixth season on CBS. There will be four programs.

Theatre for Children to Begin July 4 at Woodstock Playhouse

The Woodstock Playhouse will present plays for little people again this summer. Performances will be every Saturday at 11 a.m. beginning July 4th!

The first show, for the holiday week-end, will be continuously fascinating old fairy tale Hansel and Gretel, which will be followed by our old friend, Pinnocchio. Next the Playhouse will be bringing back, by popular demand, a new and more "wonderfuller-than-ever" production of Winnie-the-Pooh!

The next slot will be filled by either a production of Maurice Sendak's Where the Wild Things Are or Silver Bird and Scarlet Feather, a western. The final show of the season will be The Hobbit.

Discounts are available for groups and camps. For reservations and information call or write the Woodstock Playhouse P.O. Box 268, Woodstock.

HELLO LADIES!

Vacation, Vacation Time Is Here

Summer is here and it's time to start shopping for vacation and this year you can go on vacation in style. Just because you are overweight does not mean you have to settle for clothes that have long been out of style. This is what most stores think, that you have to take what you can get. But, please believe me, it's not true. In our shop we have youthful style clothes in large sizes. All the new colors. Dress sizes 10-16/16½-32/38-52/54 to 60. Pant dresses 18½-52; Cocktail dresses 18½-60; Blouses 38-52; walking shorts 32-46 waist; bathing suits 40-52; slacks 32-46. Also outsize pantyhose. Lingerie in large sizes.

So you see, you can go on vacation looking your best. I know it's hard to believe, but seeing is believing. I know what it's like, you see I am overweight myself so come check us out, you'll be glad you did. You won't have to fight traffic and travel a great distance. We are just off Broadway in Newburgh. Looking to see you soon.

Famed Pianist to Open Series at Mountindale

Van Cliburn, world-renowned pianist will open the summer series musical, film and art programs at "Mountindale" with a recital on Tuesday evening, July 7. His program will include Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Tchaikovsky and Chopin.

Tickets for the Van Cliburn recital are available at "Mountindale" headquarters in the New Prospect Hotel, Mountindale, or by writing to "Mountindale", P.O. Box 119, Mountindale, N.Y. 12763. Tickets may be purchased at Short Line Bus Terminal, Monticello; Short Line Bus Terminal, Liberty; Hoo's Cigar Store, Livingston Manor; Poppy's Pancake House, Parksville; Levin's Pharmacy, Woodridge; Alter's Luchonette, South Fallburg; and The New Prospect Hotel, Mountindale. The summer series of programs on a 700 acre tract will include four rock festivals, with the first on July 11, starring The Band, Joe Cocker, Richie Havens, Mountain, John Sebastian, Ten Years After, Jethro Tull, Voices of East River and Van Morrison, starting at noon Saturday and running thru until 7 a.m. Sunday. Admission for the rock programs will be only by tickets purchased in advance.

Musicals being offered include the Fanatikists, July 20-25; Man of La Mancha, July 27-August 1; Cabaret, August 10-15; Stop the World, August 17-22; and Your Own Thing August 24-29.

Operatic stars Roberta Peters and Jan Peerce will give a recital on Wednesday, July 22. There will be film festivals July 25 to August 22 and a festival of Israeli dance and music on Thursday, August 13.

Advanced ticket sales went the first wee' according to producers of "mountindale".

Van Cliburn's current tour, under the management of impresario S. Hurok, takes him to more than sixty cities thruout the United States and Canada in both recital and as soloist with major symphony orchestras. More than a quarter million fans will hear him this tour around.

Season after season Van Cliburn's incredibly enormous following continues to grow, swarmed to Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia to hear him play. The "New York Times" reported, "After playing four ercores, Mr. Cliburn was besieged on the stage by many younger members of the audience."

As his audiences have grown, so has Van Cliburn's artistry.

VAN CLIBURN

He has managed the incredible difficult task of living up to his own legend after having won the two most coveted piano competitions, the Leventritt Award in 1954 and the First Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow in 1958, when he was skyrocketed in international fame.

Van Cliburn has always been praised for his extraordinary technical facility, but as one Washington newspaper headlined last season, "Van Cliburn Shows He's Come of Age." The writer went on to say, "His program, long and taxing, revealed many facets of pianistic and interpretive demands, all met with the aplomb of an established virtuoso."

JULY 4th BENEFIT—Gifted Jazz singer LuLu Godfrey who has appeared with such entertainment greats as Duke Ellington and Count Basie, will be guest artist Saturday at 8:30 p. m. at Camp Ivy, Clove Valley Road, High Falls. The outside cabaret-type evening will include folk music, opera, and drama, with all proceeds benefitting the children at the Camp.

Gettin' in on action were Ward Ingalsbe, John and Doris Burns, Tommy Davitt, Hugh Reynolds, Harlow DeForest. City Clerk Lou DeCicco bid and bagged purse for his missus—easy to see who minds the mint in their pad. The one that floored us tho' was Mrs. "Babe" Caruso who was high bidder for wedding gown. Wonder what she has in mind? Perhaps she and Celestino, better known as "Chil," are gonna renew the vows come their next anniversary and Babe wants it to be a formal affair?

Chairman Jim Thompson—a bit crushed 'cause crowd wasn't larger—looked like he was playin' lead in funeral procession. Cheer up, Jim. You can't win 'em all. Anyhow, as long as there's a profit (and there was), the Ball's a success in our book. Let's look at it this way: it's not often one can dance to fine tunes of Dick Campbell Quartet at the Crystal Room of hotel without sardine can existence. P.S. High AND low bidders all scored at hotel's buffet.

Movie-great Joan Fontaine took a "cut" from rehearsal of "Relatively Speaking" to make entrance at patio cocktail party—press conference at Bill Brat-tain's Squire's Inn, Hyde Park. The Tokyo-born, U.S. citizen, of English descent, was highly impressed with Hyde Park . . . "reminds me of England;" and to clinch matters, it even rained.

Hyde Park Playhouse Manager Peter O'Rourke introduced cast of newly opened Eddie Bracken theatre to such local play-goers as Tobie and Ted Geertsema, Harry Thayer, Dorothy Narel, Barbara Jordan.

Spotted at Monday's premiere production of 1970 Season of Stars were the Herb Greenwalds, Bill and Margaret Roosa, Judy and Don MacIsaac, Bill Hawk, Kingston's most avid theatre-goer. Speaking of Bill, he was one of 5000 who saw Liberate at Saratoga Performing Arts and claims the amazing pianist was everything-and-more. Known as "Mr. Showmanship" to his fans, he was "simply fantastic", appearing in—are you ready?—"Diamond and pearl tux and white fur", just part of his million dollar wardrobe. By the way, did you know Liberate was known on nightclub circuit under the name of Walter Busterkeys? Wonder what brother George was called then! Getting back to Hyde Park Playhouse, Jo Thayer was 'here, too: Harry was tied up with the Englishmen. . . British Day and "awl" that, you know!

Ed Finn was chattin' 'bout kith 'n kin at Coach House Players banquet in Holiday Inn where highlight of evening was burnin' the little theatre's mortgage. Ed who seems to be related someway-or-other with EVERYBODY, what with 43 nieces and nephews, claims "Mother's worried 'cause no one in family's pregnant."

Saw Pat and Rae Bottino there, too. (He's Pat; she's Rae). Mrs. B. wanted to wear pantsuit but Pat said nay. Hear tell he and she made a bargain: if there were 10 pansuits or more at banquet, Pat had to buy Rae anything she wanted. . . Ray's gettin' a guitar!

One of area's largest surprise birthday parties took place June 24 at Community Theatre when Manager Marge Thomas was honored by Kingston's Walter Reade Theatre managers, Jo-Jo the clown, and more than 400 local children attending matinee kiddie show. Marge was lured on stage on pretense to welcome youngsters while City Theatre manager Bob Battaglia cued kiddies and "Happy Birthday" rang out loud and clear. Mrs. T. received homemade birthday cake complete with candles, gift certificate, and two dozen beautiful roses. Sentimentalist that she is, Marge shook with emotion, tears and all that. But—typical Marge—before one could say "Have a Happy" she bounced back like a yo yo!

'Paintings 1970' Exhibit Will Open Saturday

The exhibition, "Paintings 1970," by Dan Gottschalk will be in for a double treat. The artist, having completed recent work, has achieved a new height in expressing a richer story through his original technique using oils and plastic as his medium.

Art Classes Open this Weekend

The Woodstock branch of The Art Students League of New York will re-open for the summer this weekend.

Today is Registration Day. Anyone wishing to study at the League during July may register until 4 p.m. Registration may be by the week or by the month. Classes will continue through August 27th.

On Sunday, the annual Instructors Exhibition will open to the public with a party in the League gallery from 4 to 6 p.m. Works by the artists who are instructors at the summer school this year will include paintings and drawings by the distinguished nationally-known artists Robert Angeloch, Bruce Dorfman and William Pachner.

This exhibition will be on view through July 23rd. After opening day, gallery hours will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays (closed weekends).

Classes will begin on Monday, July 6th. If necessary, students missing Registration Day may register just before class on Monday the 6th. At that time the spacious studios will be open and monitors will be in the studios to answer questions.

The 1970 series of the Friday Noon Forums will begin at 12 noon on the second Friday in July, July 10th, and continue through the summer. Well-known artist and League instructor Bruce Dorfman will direct the forums, at which, from time to time, guests will appear and to which the public is invited. There is no admission charge to these popular, informal gatherings, held under the pines outside of Studio 2. The custom of FORUM at the League was originated by the late famous artist and League instructor Arnold Blanch.

The Art Students League of New York, at Woodstock, is located on Route 212, one mile east of the intersection of Route 375, going toward Saugerties. In its sequestered location on wooded grounds, offering a program conducive to serious study, each year the Woodstock summer school is "discovered" by students who come from "all over the map." There are no entrance requirements. Beginners as well as advanced students and professional artists, young and older, make up the classes. This branch of the most renowned independent art school in the world, which has had its main school in New York City since 1875, opened its first Woodstock summer school in 1906, and has been at its present site since 1946.

For catalogue, write P.O. Box 338, Woodstock.

Looking at Gottschalk's canvasses, one is reminiscent of such painters as Paul Klee, DuBuffet; and some of his Israeli paintings relate of Moshe Castel. An example of his outstanding paintings include "The Fight to Save" (Earth Day Message); "The Games People Play" (from football to pistol-shooting); "3 Figures" (a composition in grey); "Cathedral" (a stained-glass abstraction); along with his Israeli ones: "The Torah"; "Israeli Folk Dance"; "Jerusalem- Dead Sea Scroll"; and "The Wall of Hope."

Gottschalk's sensitivity to color, his imagination for subject matter, and the texture in his work add to the excitement, indicating the artist's peace of mind, a deep feeling for religion, and a great love for people.

This exhibition will be at Parnassus-Square Gallery until July 31, after which the paintings may be viewed at Ann Leonard Gallery in Woodstock and the Koltnow Gallery in New York. The Israeli paintings will go on display at the Boiberik Gallery in Rhinebeck during the month of August.

The public is invited to attend the exhibition which will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. daily except Wednesdays.

New Paltz Exhibit

Stars caught in rich atmospheric textures dominate the exhibition of colorful paintings now at State University College, New Paltz. The paintings were completed last year by Isabelle Liikala in Provincetown, Mass.

Born and raised in Greenwood, Mississippi, she received her bachelor's degree in painting from the Memphis Art Academy. Also an experimental film-maker, her films are handled by the New York city-based Film-Makers Cooperative. Her husband Bob teaches intermedia in the College Art Division. She also is the operator of the Real (Natural) Food Store, a health food store, at 58 Main Street in New Paltz.

The exhibition may be seen in the campus Main Library through July 12.

PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION — Among the millions of Americans who will celebrate the birth of our nation tomorrow is Master Joseph Boyle shown here saluting Old Glory. A six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyle of 149 Highland Avenue, the youthful patriot will be a first grade student at St. Peter's School in September. Joe has an older brother John, and two sisters, Mary 11, and Patricia 8, who agree with him that America is and always will be "One nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. Hello...Remember Me?

Some People call Me Old Glory, others call Me the Star Spangled Banner, but whatever they call Me, I am your Flag, the Flag of the United States of America...Something has been bothering Me, so I thought I might talk it over with you...because it is about you and Me.

I remember some time ago People lined up on both sides of the Street to watch the Parade and naturally I was leading every Parade, proudly waving in the breeze. When your Daddy saw Me coming, He immediately removed His Hat and placed it against His left shoulder so that the Hand was directly over his Heart...Remember?

And you, I remember you. Standing there straight as a Soldier. You didn't have a Hat, but you were giving the right Salute. Remember little Sister? Not to be outdone, she was Saluting the same as you with Her right Hand over Her Heart...Remember?

What happened? I'm still the same old Flag. Oh, I have a few more Stars since you were a Boy. A lot more Blood has been shed since those Parades of long ago. But now I don't feel as proud as I used to. When I come down your Street you just stand there with your Hands in your Pockets and I may get a small glance and then you look away. Then I see the Children running around and shouting...they don't seem to know who I am...I saw one Man take His Hat off then look around. He didn't see anybody else with theirs off so He quickly put His back on.

Is it a Sin to be Patriotic anymore? Have you forgotten what I stand for and where I've been...Anzio, Guadalcanal, Korea and now Vietnam. Take a look at the Memorial Honor Rolls sometime, of those who never came back to keep this Republic free...One Nation Under God...when you Salute Me, you are actually Saluting them.

Well, it won't be long until I'll be coming down your Street again. So, when you see Me, stand straight, place your right Hand over your Heart...and I'll Salute you, by waving back...and I'll know that....
